

ASHVILLE CLUB PLANNING TO BUILD CONCRETE FOUNDATION

ASHVILLE, June 15.—With the unanimous consent of council the Ashville Community club is sponsoring a movement to build a concrete foundation 38x80 feet to be used for amusement purposes and in the future will form a base for a much needed improvement, a shelter house for Community park. A sum sufficient to guarantee the project has already been raised by popular subscription, and ere long the soliciting committee, C. W. Squire and A. W. Graham, hopes to have sufficient pledges to finance it.

The site selected as best suited for the purpose lies between the park's main entrance and the cinder track just south of the band stand and bleachers. Stakes were set Thursday morning and men set to work to clear the ground. It is planned to have the work completed within the next week.

TRIPLE PURPOSE

This added improvement will serve a triple purpose. It will be used to stage the big dance on the afternoon and evening of the Fourth and will provide ample room for Montana Meechy and his cowboy musicians to "strut their stuff." The club has been handicapped in the past by having too small platform but with the new floor all who desire to "trip the light fantastic toe" can be accommodated.

It will also serve as a tennis court in season which will be welcome news to all lovers of this popular sport. And last but not least its ultimate use will be to form a lasting foundation for a commodious shelter house for the comfort of our guests.

SPIRIT GOOD ONE

The civic spirit manifested by the club, and especially the special committee Messrs Squire, Graham and Brinker, is admired and the generous response from our business and professional men and our many friends is most gratifying to the community at large.

The United States, says Einstein in his new book, by "collection of its war debts without any consideration" is contributing to the moral decadence of Europe. Well, how many have we collected, professor?

ceedly able and attractive Tugwell was not really at stake. There was no question of either his ability or character.

What these three Old Guards were striking at, the objective of ire and antics, was the New Deal, more specifically the man in the White House — who personifies the New Deal.

All through the special session last year, and the six months of legislative activity this year, these men, plus others on the Democratic side in both branches of Congress, have fretted and raged against Rooseveltian liberal policies, sometimes openly voted with Old Guard Republicans in opposition.

Roosevelt Critics

"You are just attacking the Administration, that's all," quietly remarked Iowa's Democratic Senator Louis Murphy to Smith, as the latter was elaborately explaining just why he was against the Tugwell appointment. "I resent that," roared the bulky, drooping-mustachioed South Carolinian. "By the eternal God, I won't stand for these dirty insinuations."

He launched into another flag-waving harangue. Murphy leaned back wearily. Other members of the committee exchanged knowing glances. They knew that there was much reason for Smith's frenzied denial.

Real Reason

Cotton Ed has been sore for some time. And chiefly because of his Democratic colleague from South Carolina. The latter — Jimmy Byrnes — is one of Roosevelt's most trusted Congressional advisers. Cotton Ed, after 25 years in the Senate, is not.

Byrd and Bailey have been among the most vitriolic critics of the New Deal.

The result was the political free-for-all — Democrats lampooning Democrats, Republicans coming to the defense of the Administration, and the chief man criticised being not so much Tugwell, but Henry Wallace, his chief, and inferentially, the President himself.

The incident will go down in Congressional history along with the circus midjet in J. P. Morgan's lap.

Merry-Go-Round

When it comes to the ladies, Illinois' bearded, grandiloquent Senator "Ham" Lewis can't be bothered with such obstacles as Senate rules. Introduced in a Capitol corridor to Miss Kyllikki Pohjola, member of the Finnish Parliament "Ham" promptly invited her onto the Senate floor. Senate rules prohibit this, but when doormen and guards tried to tell this to "Ham" he waved them aside with an august bow he ushered the foreign visitor into the chamber. Three of New York City's delegation in the House have the same first name and middle initial. They are John J. Boylan, John J.

LOANS REFINANCE FARM DEBT

A total of $479,400 of Federal land bank and Land Bank Commissioner's farm mortgage loans was made in Pickaway-co. from June 1, 1933, to May 1, 1934, according to the Farm Credit Administration, Miss Ethel Brobst, secretary-treasurer of the Pickaway-co. National Farm Loan association, announces.

Of this total, farmers in Pickaway-co. used approximately $427,100, or 89.1 per cent to refinance their indebtedness. By refinancing, farmers obtained new mortgage loans which they used to repay old debts. They generally reduced their annual interest charges in doing so. In a number of cases, scale-downs of indebtedness occurred in connection with the new loans. These and other advantages benefited farmers primarily. Secondly, creditors benefited from the receipt of cash or bonds in exchange for obligations they held.

MONEY DISTRIBUTED
Of the loan money used by farmers in Pickaway-co. for refinancing their debts, about $175,000, it was estimated, repaid their debts to banks; $30,200, their debts to insurance companies; $16,300, their taxes; $4,800, their debts to merchants; $200,800, their debts to "others" or creditors not separately classified, including private mortgage lenders, mortgage loan companies, retired farmers and many others to whom farmers were in debt.

A total of about $52,300 of loans in the county was used for purposes other than the refinancing of borrowers' debts. Of this sum, $20,700 was used for the purchase of land and equipment, the construction or improvement of buildings, and for general agricultural uses, including the provision of capital, while $22,600, the balance, was used for the purchase of stock in national farm loan associations, for loan fees, etc.

MUTE KILLS SISTER

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—Because his 35-year-old sister, who had cared for him since boyhood, had been "acting very funny lately," Charles Schragger, 38-year-old deaf-mute, hammered the woman to death as she slept in her bed today, police said.

The victim of the barbaric attack, Miss Helen Schragger, died a few hours later in Misericordia hospital from the effects of seven deep wounds in her head.

MISS DUNGAN

T. Schleich and Earl Baker filed their petitions. The candidacy of Miss Justus, who has been in the millinery business in Lancaster for the past 21 years, is expected to cause a split in the Democratic ranks in the 11th congressional district. Miss Dungan has secured the endorsements of several counties in the district, so a close race is expected.

It was not learned who was backing the candidacy of Miss Justus, although rumor had it that a prominent Democratic state politician, urged her to make the race.

A contest for Democratic state committee from the 11th district is also expected as Sen. James E. Ford of Chillicothe has announced that he will oppose Garrett S. Claypool, also of the Rossco seat, the incumbent.

Thomas P. White of Lancaster and Renick W. Dunlap of Pickaway-twp., Republicans, have filed their petitions in Chillicothe seeking the nomination of congressman from the 11th district.

OPPOSE UNDERWOOD
Mell G. Underwood of New Lexington, Democratic incumbent, will seek re-election and is expected to be opposed by John Mader, E. Main-st.; H. B. Welch of Rockbridge, Hocking-co.; Dr. James M. Lantz of Lancaster, and Louis M. Day of Chillicothe.

Most of the Democratic and Republican county committee candidates had filed their petitions today. No contests were reported other than the one between Schleich and Baker in Deer Creek-twp. and that between Mack Parrett, Jr., and Earl Smith, Republicans, for committee from the First ward, this city.

Sharp retaliatory measures by Great Britain and France will follow Germany's announcement yesterday of a moratorium on all foreign debt payments.

The British government announced in the house of commons it is prepared to sequester German trade balances in that country to pay interest to British holders of German bonds.

France plans similar action to protect the rights of her citizens. Berlin, meanwhile, stands pat on yesterday's warning to England and France against taking reprisals because of the moratorium.

adjusted had the report been submitted to the commissioners.

"A representative of the state relief commission in a personal interview at the commissioner's office on Wednesday, June 6, promised the commissioners a clean slate providing they would turn over the direct outside relief to the F. E. R. A. director, and the commissioners have not granted this request."

Mr. Krinn's statement was taken to be the official reply of the commissioners to the claim of improper diversion.

PROGRAM BROAD ONE

Just how extensive a program will be carried out by the commissioners in way of relief is a matter for conjecture. It is certain the commissioners have not been in sympathy with many of the programs of the government concerning relief activities. There has been no statement concerning their plans.

If the state carries out its announcement, and there is no reason to believe it will not, all government food, money for workers on relief jobs, the rural relief program and whatever else is being done will stop June 30. Persons who have been next to the relief situation believe the problem will become precarious.

Several projects now going on will be stopped before they are concluded unless the county intends to complete them. They include the airport job, Memorial hall and the canal project. Berger hospital landscaping, the north end sewer and work on the armory will be completed this month while the relief money is still coming in.

Mr. Weiler, relief director, has about 175 men on the relief lists being given work through the government projects.

SCHOOL BOARD ACTS

The Walnut-st. school project, started under CWA but delayed under FERA, will be handled by the school board alone, it was announced Friday. The board of education met Thursday evening to decide to advertise for bids on the remainder of the construction work. The bids will be opened at 7:30 p. m. next Tuesday.

CHINESE SLAY AMERICAN, 75, FOR $5 NOTE

PEIPING, China, June 15.—The Rev. Dr. J. H. Ingram, 75 years old, revered scholar of Chinese culture, was shot and killed early today by Chinese bandits for the $5 they found on his person.

Dr. Ingram, who was born in Philadelphia, was a leading promoter of cultural relations between America and China. He taught in the California College of China and his daughter, Mrs. Isabel Mayer, now of Baltimore, was the tutor of the empress of Manchukuo.

Dr. Ingram was sent to China years ago by the American Board of Missions.

The attack occurred at the Ingram's summer cottage 10 miles west of Peiping. Mrs. Ingram and three grandchildren escaped harm.

Returning to Peiping today with the body of her husband Mrs. Ingram told International News Service the details of the ghastly night with bandits trooping through all the rooms of the cottage shooting and looting.

The bandits entered and began trooping through all the rooms seeking money. In spite of his age and his calling Dr. Ingram grappled with them.

While one bandit held Mrs. Ingram in the bed, another shot her husband before her eyes. The first shot won't wild but the second killed him instantly.

The bandits took $5, all the Ingrams had, and fled.

Mrs. Ingram lifted her husband's body to the bed and then herding the children in the next room told them stories until dawn to keep them from becoming hysterical.

It is believed that the bandits were soldiers who recently mutinied. Nelson T. Johnson, American minister to China, after expressing his sorrow to Mrs. Ingram, sharply requested the police to apprehend Dr. Ingram's murderers. He also visited Mayor Yuan Lang asking for protection for the numerous Americans summering in the western hills where the outrage occurred.

Japan's Ambitions

THAT Japan is not inclined to retrace any recent steps in its foreign policy is indicated by Prince Fumimaro Kono, president of the Japanese house of peers, now on a visit in the United States.

In an interview in New York, the prince outlined some of Japan's present aims as he sees them. Although emphasizing that he was not attempting to speak officially but only as an individual Japanese citizen, his statement can be interpreted only as reflecting an official viewpoint.

Japan will not return to the League of Nations, he said, "until the league changes its views on the Far Eastern situation."

Defending Japan's action in Manchukuo, he justified this "not only on grounds of self-defense, but from the standpoint of what was necessary for the welfare of all the nations in the Far East."

Further purposes of Japan were outlined as including freedom for Japanese to live in any part of the world they choose, and unrestricted interchange of goods and commodities with all countries on the globe.

It is evident, from the prince's views, that Japan is due to occupy a prominent position in future discussions of peace and other international problems. Her aims, outside of her demand for naval parity, are of a kind to come into conflict with recognized policies of other powers.

"If world peace is to mean simply sticking to things as they are," the prince was quoted as saying, "then the Japanese people are not satisfied; they are looking for the establishment of international justice."

And it would seem that they want themselves to be the judge of what constitutes international justice.

In other words, Japan has formulated a definite program of expansion irrespective of the interests of other nations, and is determined to see it carried out.

Its course in China represents justice in the Japanese conception, but the world has another word for it. And it may be that Tokyo will find that it is much easier to formulate than to execute programs when these came into conflict with the interest of countries able to defend themselves.

Two Experts on Marriage Seek Divorce—Headline. Well, it is not unusual for experts to disagree.

The Backwoods Doctor

THE world must admire the quiet, business-like way in which Dr. J. A. Dafoe, the little Canadian backwoods physician, has gone about his duties of caring for the five girl babies suddenly thrust upon him.

Whatever may be the fate of the quintuplets (and there is general hope that they will live and thrive), medical history will have failed in its mission if it does not reserve a place for a few lines to this general practitioner. Dr. Dafoe has not been blinded to his duties or spoiled in any manner by the floodlight of publicity turned upon him and his charges.

To the babies and the mother he has continued to give the best he had, and that his best represents skill and common sense of a high order is proved by the fact that his little patients are living and thriving to the astonishment of the medical world.

The doctor had none of the conveniences of a hospital or even of a comfortably equipped home to aid him at the outset. From far and wide have come incubators and other things since news of his plight reached the outside world, but at first he had to depend exclusively upon his own resources and the crudest of equipment. Six lives were at stake. He had seen 1,500 babies come into the world in his 28 years of practice, but never quintuplets. The fact that these had been born prematurely increased the hazards facing them.

The task of keeping them alive, to many a physician similarly placed would have seemed an impossible one. But not to Dr. Dafoe; or if it did, he did not show his fears.

Dr. Dafoe seems to typify in the highest degree the old-time country doctor who felt himself qualified to tackle any medical or other problem arising in his community and to those he served, and who usually could do this with remarkable success.

While "pulling" for the babies, the world should not forget the man to whom is due the credit that they are living.

"I TAKE THIS WOMAN"

By Allene Corliss

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

"You're an awfully sweet child, Val," Perry told her softly, smiling straight into her eyes with his own half-closed, caressing blue-eyes.

"So I've been told," Perry replied, his lighter, continued to smile at her. "It would be very easy to love you, Valerie."

"It would be very easy to let you—love me, Perry." She left her hand in his. Between them a faint cloud of smoke rose and floated ceilingward. The old room was curiously still and filled with shadows and the drifting little breeze, and the steady ticking of the old clock on the mantel.

"I may remind you of that sometime," Perry said evenly.

"I wouldn't if I were you," returned Valerie just as evenly, and she slid her hand out of his.

"That's for me to decide."

She shrugged. "Have a nice time up north?"

"Quite—worried a bit about Stanley, though. She was in a rather unsettled mood when I left."

"Well, she's not now. Quite the opposite. She's going to have a baby, Perry."

"She's going to have—what?"

"A baby, stupid. People do, you know." She smiled at him, looked away swiftly.

"So that's the solution, is it?" Perry spoke slowly as though he were thinking aloud. "All this hue and cry about love and desire and little old nature steps in and makes us one in the face and arranges matters to suit herself."

He looked at Valerie, grinned suddenly. "You know, Val, my dear, I'm tremendously relieved—this honesty and whatnot—and then sort of settles things, don't you think?"

Val met his eyes gravely. "A baby usually does, I've noticed."

"And you think it will for Stanley?"

"I think so. She tried to tell me a lot of nonsense about not living with John Harmon any more. I don't know what it was all about exactly—but any how she hasn't mentioned it again."

"She won't," he answered, smiling slowly, thoughtfully, "and John Harmon will come back and if she's wise she'll never even let him guess."

Valerie shook her head. "You don't know Stanley, Perry, she's so honest."

"You have lovely eyes, Valerie," he interrupted her irrelevantly, "and an exciting mouth. Sometime, I'd like to kiss you—a lot."

"You wouldn't fool me, would you, mister?"

"No," replied Perry softly, and his fingers found hers and tightened about them. "I wouldn't. Even if I could—I wouldn't."

John Harmon came back the second week in June. But it was Perry who met him at the boat and not Stanley.

"Do you mind, Perry?" she had asked him the night before. "I'd so much rather see him, first—alone."

And Perry had told her: "No, I don't mind at all—but promise me you'll be sensible."

She had smiled at him, a gravely unassuming smile. "I'll be the only way I can be, Perry. I'm not good at dissembling, it just isn't my way, that's all."

And he had had to be content with that and meet John Harmon's boat.

And now John Harmon, his face white with disappointment and nervous with apprehension, was closing tense fingers about his arm and demanding: "Where is Stanley, Perry? Why isn't he here?"

"She's quite all right, old man, and crazy to see you. But the heat, you know—and I expect she preferred having you to herself, rather than sharing you with this crowd."

John Harmon's grip relaxed, he laughed apologetically. "Of course. Crazy of me to have been so darned upset. How is she anyway, Perry?"

"Fine. You're looking pretty fit yourself—have a great trip?"

"Great. It would have been wonderful if Stanley had been along—I missed her like the devil. D'y'you know, Perry, about three weeks ago I came near ditching Maynard and turning around and beating it home? We were in Rome and I had the queerest feeling—that something was wrong, you know—one night I lay awake for hours struggling against this feeling that something was happening to Stanley—to us, if you see what I mean. I thought I'd be all right in the morning—but I wasn't. But that night I slept all right and after that everything was okay again. Funny, wasn't it?"

He looked at Perry inquiringly from beneath the brim of his hat, laughed briefly. "Just shows how a man's imagination will get the better of his common sense, doesn't it?"

"Yes," agreed Perry evenly, guiding his car through heavy traffic, "it certainly does."

Stanley stood at one of the front windows and saw the car drive up, saw John Harmon gather up his bags and leap out, saw Perry drive away, saw John Harmon run up the steps, two at a time.

She turned then and went to meet him. But she had only gone a few steps when he flung the door open and then closed it again, softly, behind him.

"Darling!"

He held her tightly, his arms hard and punishing about her slim shoulders. For a moment they stood like this, then he put her away from him, laughed down at her with eyes that were a little frightened, a little pleading. "Don't cry like that, Stanley, it's not good for you. Besides, there's nothing to cry about, precious."

"I know, I'm an awful little fool, John Harmon. I ought to be gay and beautiful—and excited! And instead of that, I'm all damp and smeared with tears and lip-stick! I'm all right, now, though—truly, I am." She smiled at him, lifting her chin gallantly.

John Harmon looked away swiftly. Suddenly, for some reason which he couldn't explain at all, he felt like crying too. And all the time she was thinking: "I've got to tell him, some time before tonight, I've got to tell him—about the baby—about Drew. And I want to tell him about the baby but it will be hard telling him about Drew."

Yet she knew she would do it. Must do it. She meant to do it first. All her life she had done disagreeable things first. Saved all the nice things until last. It made doing the disagreeable things easier, knowing the nice things were there—waiting for her. But somehow she didn't.

And John Harmon, unpacking his bags, stopping to tell her about this or that, asking her if she remembered a certain little street or a restaurant or a shop, knew with a terrible certainty that he had not been wrong; knew that while he had been away something had happened to Stanley. And terror gripped his heart and trembled in his soul and his hands would not stay steady, nor his voice, and as the afternoon wore on he looked at her less and less and talked more and more—or else he would surely have betrayed the fear that grew within him and said to her: "Whatever it is, Stanley, tell me, anything is better than not knowing."

And Stanley kept saying to herself: "Now I will tell him about Drew, and then, very quickly, about the baby and he will forget

Drew and think only about the baby."

But still she didn't.

And finally it was not afternoon at all but evening and they sat together on the divan and the room was very still and warm with only the tall blue candles lighted against the summer darkness. And John Harmon's arms lay very lightly about her shoulders and they were still talking lightly, and inconsequently, about many things—about everything, in fact, except the one thing that hung between them, in the candle-light and the shadows and the thin, sweet, summer night.

Then quite suddenly she was telling him—not about Drew but about the baby. She said, slipping out of his arms, finding his eyes and clinging to them, "I'm going to have a baby, John Harmon—in December."

He stared at her for a minute, his eyes uncomprehending, then he laid his hands very quickly on her shoulders. "A baby? Are you sure, darling, quite sure?"

"Quite sure."

"I'm sorry, Stanley."

She stiffened beneath his hands, her eyes widened and grew very dark. "But I'm not sorry, John Harmon—I'm glad."

"You mean you love me—enough for that—you don't hate me for it, darling?"

Stanley closed her eyes. His hands were hurting her, so hard pressed they were into her slim arms. "No, it's you—who will hate me, John Harmon."

"What do you mean, Stanley?" Now his fingers were gripping her until it seemed she must cry out with pain, his voice was as tight and taut as a piece of stretched twine.

AT THE CLIFTONA

George Raft has had to go back on the training table!

When his screen career started, he thought the grueling routine of the diet table and the exercise room, part and parcel of his life since early youth, were all over!

But now, in his latest Paramount film, "Bolero," at the Cliftona Theatre, he is a dancer again. To be able to interpret the tempestuous rhythms of the "Bolero," in the film, he had to go back into training.

Early in his life, he was a prize fighter, and had to keep to 112 pounds. Then came baseball, and the necessity of keeping within 122 pounds. Then, on the stage and in European night clubs, as a dancer, he had to keep within a maximum limit of 130 pounds.

When he started his film career, he heaved a sigh of relief at the thought of allowing himself to approach once more his natural weight of 140 pounds.

When, however, he won the role in "Bolero," he tightened his belt, cut out starches and sweets and began all the old gym and road exercises.

AT THE GRAND

Charles Farrell and Bette Davis are co-starred in Warner Bros.

WALNUT-TWP

Mrs. Amelia Carey of Canton, visited the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown and family.

Mrs. Fred Dresbach and daughter, Joyce, who have been sick are able to be about the house.

Messrs. Martin Cromley and Warner Hedges are substitute

"The Big Shakedown," which comes to the Grand Theatre Friday.

Farrell and Miss Davis, who play for the first time together, make delightful screen lovers.

Farrell will be remembered for sterling characterizations in such recent pictures as "Aggie Appleby, Maker of Men," "The First Year," "Wild Girl" and "Tess of the Storm Country," and in many others with Janet Gaynor.

Miss Alice Weaver is recovering from injuries received in an auto accident a month ago.

Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Holman of Circleville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Hay on Sunday, June 3.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Bower and son, Paul and daughter, Erma, C. E. Brown and Miss Florence Brown were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Brown, in Circleville.

Miss Frances Weiser, of Canton, will spend her vacation with her mother, Mrs. Lillie Weiser.

Recipes You Will Need For Summer

Cookery Given by Mrs. George O. Thurn

Dear Readers in Circleville:

So many requests comes to me for various types of bread. And now that hot weather and sand-wich times here, this unusual rye bread may be doubly welcome. But remember that the bakers of today carry amazingly varied assortments of bread, and to enliven the cookery schedule, indulge the family in bought bread as often as you give them the home made varieties.

Swedish Rye Bread

One cake compressed yeast; two cups water; two teaspoons salt; one fourth cup dark cooking molasses; one fourth cup dark table molasses; five and one half cups flour; two and one half cups medium rye flour; two tablespoons shortening. Raisins if desired.

Crumble yeast into bowl, add the water which has been scalded and cooled to 80 degrees F. (This is just cooler than lukewarm). The liquid mixture should be at 80 degrees F.

When yeast is dissolved, add salt, cooking molasses and table molasses.

Sift flour once before measuring. Add all the flour at once to the liquid and work in thoroughly with the hands working in the softened shortening at the same time.

When the dough is thoroughly mixed, knead it gently in the bowl or on a wet floured board until it is smooth. (Rye dough has a tendency to become much softer than other dough, but the softer and more pliable it is, the more tender loaf it will make).

Round up dough and set it to rise in a well greased bowl at 80 degrees to 85 degrees F. It should double its bulk in one and a half to two hours. (Depending upon the temperature of the room.)

Punch the dough by putting the closed fist in center and folding dough over with the hands. Turn the dough completely over and let rise to one and three fourths its bulk—about forty-five minutes to one hour.

Punch dough down again and let stand for twenty minutes, or until it 'comes back.' Divide dough for three loaves, mold each loaf separately and let rise in pans to double in bulk—about one hour. (If raisins are added, use one-half cup for each loaf and add them when molding dough into loaves.)

Bake forty-five to fifty minutes at 425 degrees F., moderately hot oven.

Three bread pans two and three-fourths inches deep and four and one-half by eight and one-half inches across the top (or deep round pans) may be used.

For a quicker process, two cakes of graham crackers, soda cracker, brush loaves with butter when they come out of oven. Cover with towel.

Cole Slaw

Two cups chopped cabbage; two tablespoons vinegar; one egg well beaten; two tablespoons mayonnaise; one teaspoon sugar; one teaspoon baking powder; one teaspoon salt; one half teaspoon of pepper.

Chop cabbage and mix thoroughly with other ingredients.

Ham Loaf

One pound fresh ham ground; one pound smoked ham ground; eight crackers ground; one egg; one cup milk; one fourth teaspoon salt; one fourth teaspoon pepper; one teaspoon baking powder.

Beat egg, mix with other ingredients, form into a loaf. Bake in a loaf cake pan rubbed with shortening and pour one can of tomato soup over the loaf before putting in the oven. Moderate oven, 350 degrees F., for one half hour.

White Mountain Filling

White of an egg; two thirds of a cup of sugar; one tablespoon water; one teaspoon vanilla; one half teaspoon baking powder.

Beat the white of the egg till stiff. Add sugar slowly, and continue the beating. Then add the water, flavoring and baking powder. Turn the mixture into the upper part of a double boiler having plenty of boiling water in the lower part. Set on the heat and beat till the filling is quite warm to the touch. Then stand the pan in cold water and continue beating till cold. Pile between and on top of layer cake. This makes a creamy filling, smooth and light.

Coffee Cake

Two eggs; one cup sugar; one fourth cup shortening; one half cup warm milk; one cup flour; one fourth teaspoon salt; one teaspoon baking powder.

Blend shortening and sugar. Beat eggs and add to first mixture. Sift flour, salt and baking powder together. Add dry mixture alternately with milk to the moist mixture. Beat well. Rub a baking pan with shortening and pour in the batter. Cover the top with little pieces of butter rolled in flour then in cinnamon and sugar. Then sprinkle on top of all two tablespoons of mixed cinnamon and sugar. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F. for fifteen to twenty-five minutes. Serve hot.

Snowballs

One half cup shortening; one cup powdered sugar; three cups flour; three teaspoons baking powder; one half cup milk; whites of six eggs.

Blend shortening and sugar and beat thoroughly. Sift the flour three times with the baking powder. Then add to the fat mixture alternately with the milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites, flavor with one teaspoon vanilla. Fill custard cups rubbed with shortening, one half full. Set in a shallow pan of hot water. Place in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. and bake thirty-five minutes. Serve with fruit sauce or soft custard.

Orange Biscuits

Two cups flour; four teaspoons baking powder; three fourths cup milk; two tablespoons shortening; one half teaspoon salt.

Blend the shortening and flour which has been sifted with the baking powder and salt. Add milk and mix well. Turn out on a floured board, roll lightly and cut. Make a depression in the top of each biscuit and place in this a small cube of sugar dipped in orange juice. Grate orange peel over the tops and bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees F. for twenty minutes.

Raspberry Puffs

Two and one half cups flour; two and one half teaspoons baking powder; one eighth teaspoon salt; one egg, separated; one tablespoon melted shortening; one half cup sugar; one cup milk; two cups raspberries.

Sift the flour with the baking powder and salt. Beat yolk of egg with sugar. Add milk and melted shortening. Then add flour, beat well and add berries. Pour into custard cups rubbed with shortening and bake in a moderate oven 375 degrees F. Twelve to fifteen minutes. Serve hot with hard sauce.

Home Helps

Pastries—Not Pasticies!

Hot weather desserts must be of the crisp, cool variety to be really refreshing. When it is pie that has the spotlight in the last course, have it just as crisp as to crust as you can make it. The new pie crusts of graham crackers, soda crackers or vanilla wafers save much time and do not require so great an oven temperature as the old-standby crust does.

Deep Dish Apple Pie

3/4 C. sugar 20 butter crackers, rolled fine
3 C. cooking apples, peeled and sliced 1 pkg. cream cheese
1/4 tsp. nutmeg 1/2 C. cream
1/4 C. butter 1/2 tsp. salt

Reserve 1 Tbsp. sugar for the crust. Mix the remainder with the apples and nutmeg. Put into a shallow, buttered, pudding dish. Mix crackers with softened butter and 1 Tbsp. sugar, and spread mixture in an even layer over apples. Cover the dish and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) until the apples are tender (about 30 minutes). Uncover and brown crust lightly. Blend cheese with cream and salt until it is of a fluffy consistency and serve on the pie as a garnish. Serves six.

Pecan Pie

1/2 C. butter 3 eggs
1/2 C. sugar 1 C. chopped pecans
1 C. light corn syrup 1 tsp. vanilla
1 C. cream

Cream butter; add sugar, syrup and beaten eggs. Mix well; add pecans and vanilla, and pour into baked pie shell. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees).

Cottage Cheese Pie

1 1/2 C. smooth cottage cheese 2 eggs
1/2 C. sugar Grated rind and juice of 1 lemon
1/4 C. moist coconut 1/4 C. cream

Mash cheese with a fork and add coconut, sugar, beaten eggs, rind and lemon juice, and cream. Mix thoroughly. Pour into a pastry-lined pie pan and bake in a quick oven (425 degrees) 10 minutes. Then reduce heat to 325 degrees and bake about 20 minutes longer, or until firm. When cool, spread with strawberry jam and serve.

Chess Pie

1/4 C. butter 1/2 C. raisins
1/4 C. sugar 1/2 C. nuts
1 egg 1/4 C. milk

Cream the butter and sugar; add yolk of the egg (well beaten), then the milk, raisins and nuts. Mix well and add last the well-beaten egg white. Pour into a pan lined with pastry and bake. Use sweetened, whipped cream for the meringue.

Jellied Strawberry Pie

1 qt. fresh strawberries 1 C. boiling water berries 1 C. cream, whipped
1 C. sugar 9 tart shells or 2 pie crusts
1 pkg. strawberry gelatine

Combine strawberries and sugar, and let stand one hour. Dissolve gelatine in boiling water, pour over strawberries, and chill until gelatine begins to thicken, stirring frequently. Fold 4 tablespoons of thickened gelatine into whipped cream. Chill. Place a layer of whipped cream in the bottom of each tart shell. Chill about 10 minutes. Add jellied strawberries, chill and serve.

Don't Forget Salads In June Menus

SALADS such as these, are nourishing and refreshing. And with sandwiches and a beverage are sufficient for luncheon when the man of the house is away.

Rose Salad

One small cabbage; one and one half cups celery, diced; one pimiento shredded; one and one half cups left over cooked chicken. Dress with tarragon dressing. (Recipe below).

Remove the outside leaves of the cabbage and cut off the stalk close to the leaves. Cut out center of head, wash carefully and place in ice water for an hour. Drain dry. Shred the center and mix with the celery and chicken. Moisten with the tarragon dressing. Refill the cabbage. Turn back the outer leaves of the cabbage to resemble an open rose. Lay the finely shredded red pimientos over these top leaves. Dress with tarragon dressing made as follows:

One-half teaspoon salt; one tablespoon sugar; one eighth teaspoon paprika; one half cup olive oil; one fourth cup tarragon vinegar; one hard cooked egg, chopped fine. Mix together salt, sugar and egg. Add vinegar and oil and beat thoroughly.

Spring Salad

One head lettuce; eight slender spring onions; eight small sliced radishes; three stalks celery; one cucumber; one tomato.

Cut in small slices onions, radishes, celery, and cucumber. Combine and mix thoroughly with French mousseline dressing (given below). Cut lettuce in slices and arrange in the bottom of a large salad bowl. Arrange the first mixture on the lettuce and add the tomato, cut in slender sections. Pour this dressing over all:

One teaspoon salt; two tablespoons sugar; one half cup tomato catsup; two tablespoons of olive oil; one tablespoon vinegar; one cup sour cream. Mix salt and sugar together and add the vinegar and oil slowly. Beat in the catsup and finally add the cream beating it in gradually. Enough for five.

Bean Basket Salad

Four tomatoes; one and one half cups lima beans; one tablespoon chopped parsley; one small onion grated; two tablespoons minced celery; four strips crisp broiled bacon chopped fine; one teaspoon salt; one half teaspoon pepper.

NEGLECT OF COMMON CONSTIPATION IS A SERIOUS MATTER

Prevent This Condition with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

The first question your doctor asks is whether you are constipated or not. He knows that this condition may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness. It is often the starting point of serious illness.

You can prevent and relieve common constipation so easily. Just eat a delicious cereal once a day. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that found in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this "cereal way" safer and far more pleasant than taking patent medicines—so often harmful? Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If seriously ill, see your doctor—ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all."

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Cut slice from each tomato and remove pulp. To beans add the onion, parsley, bacon, celery and seasoning. Blend with a little Chiffonade dressing (given below) and fill tomatoes with the mixture. Pour more of the dressing over the top. It is made as follows:

One half teaspoon salt; one teaspoon sugar; one eighth teaspoon paprika; one teaspoon worcestershire sauce; one half cup olive oil; one fourth cup vinegar; one hard-cooked egg chopped fine. Mix salt, sugar, paprika and egg together. Add worcestershire sauce, then vinegar and oil, alternately beating constantly. Serves four.

MAXIE BAER 'CLOWNS' TITLE

Referee Halts 'Heavy' Match

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, June 15.—Weakly, his mind a blank, his grotesque feet shod with unseen rockers, all that remained of the giant who had been Primo Carnera, heavyweight champion of the world, gestured feebly with his right hand in the eleventh round last night. Stiffly, his bruised and battered lips moved but made no sound. "I've had enough," they tried to say and Referee Arthur Donovan, who had been a most understanding man all evening, did not fail the stricken mammoth now. With one hand, he pushed Max Baer, the new champion, away and with the other escorted the old and broken and bereft leader to his corner. It was the end. Carnera had been knocked down until mind conquered instinct and refused to admire the outrage longer. He had been down perhaps a dozen times to establish a modern championship record.

WILDEST EVENING
A tragic end to the Italian's countrymen who sat stunned while around them a crowd of 50,000 reveled and reeled in front of this climax to the wildest evening the heavyweight championship division yet has known, the Dempsey-Firpo shambles not excluded. An abject end, too, for this great oat, 263 odd pounds on the scales yesterday and almost 6 feet 7 inches tall. He stopped on his feet, he surrendered; "resigned," I believe is the term they use abroad.

"I'm finished," the gesture said, mutely, and so to the loss of his championship and his prestige and self-approval was added the ignominy of being the first of his kind to admit defeat in this manner. No champion ever before has asked to lose. Willard didn't come out of his corner at Toledo. But the assumption was that he couldn't. Primo, when he requested a cessation, was on his feet. May be the novelty was too much for him. He had been on his back most of the night.

But perhaps I draw too stark a picture of one whose incentive was great. A moment before the end, he had been knocked down from the wind of a missed punch. He was about to go again, probably for the last time, after being clipped with an overhead right. But he refused. Probably the memory of him would have been kinder if he hadn't.

DONOVAN HELPED
In all, Carnera was down anywhere from nine to thirteen times, depending on whether one counted football tackles or the times when Referee Donovan, a surprisingly tolerant man, was becoming confused in his duties to a point where he seemed to be acting as Carnera's chief second. Once in the first round, he did not employ himself with a count while Carnera lay supine and helpless in the ropes but, instead, fell to with a will, tugging and hauling until he got the giant upon his feet.

Again in the tenth, while Carnera leaned upon the ropes, his back to the encounter, and gazed with sightless eyes out upon the crowd, Mr. Donovan used one hand with which to restrain Baer and with the other, managed to turn the tottering hulk around and inspire it with some semblance of life.

However, these extra-official acts did not affect the end, but merely delayed it. For this lashing, slashing Baer, an even money bet with the great crowd that paid well over $400,000 for the best gate since 1930, was the ordained winner from the start, just as his counsellor, Dempsey, had been at far off Toledo. In fact, it was the Willard debacle all over again, with sound effects.

LIKE YEAR AGO
A year ago, Baer had done something of the same thing to Max Schmeling, a former champion; yet they derided him this time because, in the training camp, he fiddled and fooled, one of our esteemed boxing commissioners even going so far as to use the term "bum" and to suggest that the fight be called off.

What the commissioner thought in the first round when Carnera was hit with a right hand and rebounded from the canvas, I do not know. Maybe the commissioner had stopped thinking; maybe he never started. Anyway, Max Adelbert Baer is something new in pugilism, a Peter Pan, equipped with the hammer of Thor. If that's a little garbled, please remember that the evening was mad.

I can, in fact, guarantee to garble with the best of them but clothe upon the reportorial mind are two pictures that will endure to the grave itself. One was the grotesque sight of Carnera turning his back to the other man after that first knockdown and literally fleeing for his life at a broken, stumbling, plunging run with Baer in full pursuit; the other picture presents Baer, dead even in moments of mirth but always cool, ever composed and certain of his mission.

He was a study in strange contrasts. He either didn't fight at all or he went completely mad but, either way, there was design back of it all. Twice in the first round, he hurled the giant to the floor and fell on top of him. Many times thereafter he lulled the Italian into a sense of fancied security by letting the latter lead at will, only to exact a frightful toll with left hooks to the body and right swings that seldom missed the chin. Counting almost everything, even the times when he wasn't actually hurt, Carnera was down three in the first, once in the fourth, three in the tenth and twice in the eleventh.

DEMPSEY REPLICA
So, after all, Baer proved a fairly faithful replica of Dempsey, at least in results. In actuality, Baer

PLANS MATURE FOR BIRD PENNANT FETE

COLUMBUS, June 14.—Plans for the Columbus Red Birds pennant night on June 26 are rapidly progressing according to George M. Troutman, president of the Columbus baseball club. On this date, the Red Birds will raise the first pennant won by the Columbus team in over a quarter of a century. Fittingly, Minneapolis will provide the opposition for the occasion. The Millers furnished most of the opposition that Columbus found in its battle to the American association championship last year. According to Troutman, every sports writer of prominence in the United States has been invited to attend as guest of the Columbus team as well as many sports broadcasters, officials of every league of importance in the country and outstanding champions in every line of athletic endeavor.

The program for the 26th calls for brief but impressive ceremonies at 7:45 and a night game at 8:30. Following the night game, there will be a short display of fireworks. Serving on the pennant Night committee are Governor George White, Mayor Henry W. Worley, Joe Carr of the National Association of Professional Baseball League, Fred Milligan, president of the Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce, Paul Lindimore, president of the Columbus Civic Club Council and Arthur L. Evans, Charles Nixon and Fred D. Connelley, all of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce. The Committee is stressing the fact that this occasion is of signal importance not only to the Red Birds but to organized baseball in general.

The Red Birds return from their present road trip on Tuesday, June 19 to be home through July 5. The four Western clubs of the American Association as well as Toledo will provide the opposition during this extended stay.

History repeats itself. The Children of Israel were loyal to their leader so long as they got manna from Heaven.

However, it was easy to enjoy oneself as long as one is able to stand back and call one's shots as Baer did last night. And Carnera made it easier. Badly advised in his corner, he never took a count of more than two. Had he done so in the first round, instead of getting rapidly up and running in an absolute panic, he might have had a chance. Perhaps his illness of Monday robbed him of his stamina and speed. More likely, it was that first right hand punch. In any case, I personally think he never saw the day when he had a chance with the Baer who licked him last night.

His corner, of course, was no great comfort. Sorensen was there, sputtering in Italian. Nobody could hear Dan Morgan—for the first time in his life, Duffy was in prison, staring at the walls. Good Time Charlie Friedman was sitting on the ring steps, saying nothing. However, when the time came, Carnera said it for himself. "I'm through," he signalled in mute surrender.

BIRDS IN TOLEDO; SIGN TOM OLIVER

TOLEDO, June 15.—The Columbus Red Birds came here today for a game under the lights with the Toledo Mudhens.

Success of the teams was divided in games yesterday. At Indianapolis, the Birds were ineffective, and lost to the Indians by a 10-2 score. The Hens profited on errors of the Colonels, and won 8 to 2 at Louisville.

COLUMBUS, June 15.—Tom Oliver, an outfielder, has been obtained from the Baltimore International League Club on option and will report to the Columbus Red Birds at once, President George M. Troutman of the American Association club announced today.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

A REAL RECREATION BALL attraction is booked for the Southern Ohio Electric Co. field this evening with the Container Corporation outfit taking on the U. S. reformatory team from Chillicothe—The straw-boarders went to Chillicothe, Sunday, but were not permitted into the U. S. grounds.

All you ball players who have not yet sold all your tickets to the Leroy Oliver benefit games Sunday should get busy at once. ALL 400 DUCATS PUT OUT MUST BE DISPOSED OF.

The second half of this old ball league is going to be plenty tough—Every team in the league has been strengthened in the last week and the race promises to be a walk-away for no one. The Mecca restaurant and Container Corporation play for the first half championship Tuesday evening.

Cum Robinson says he has resigned as manager of the Mecca team but we won't believe that until his outfit hops onto the field next Tuesday.

THOSE WHO GUESSED THE winner of the heavyweight fight correctly were: Pat Malone, Fred Fissell, Elliott Voll, George Roof, H. O. ## HENDERSON

The Pickaway commissioners are "trying the Youngstown idea."

AIDED INSTITUTIONS
The county commissioners in Mahoning-co attempted to divert a large amount of relief funds to county welfare institutions and to county purposes. A test case was brought as a result, and the courts held that the board of county commissioners is only an agency for handling relief funds as directed by the commission.

The court's verdict upheld the law providing that funds from poor relief bonds shall go into a relief fund, and that expenditures from the fund can be legally made only with the commission's approval. It is understood that the Pickaway commissioners recently have conferred with the commissioners of Harrison-co, which chose from the start to handle its own relief burden and refused to issue poor relief bonds of any kind and thus have not received federal and state relief money.

GIVENS BLANK MEATS, 6 TOO; JONES ON HILL

Colored Team Tough; Only Five McClarren Batters Reach First Sack.

The Given Oil Co. ball club turned in its tracks, Thursday evening, and bit hard at one of the league teams in an effort to regain lost honors. Pushed around by five of the clubs, the Givens held faith in the saying "The Worm Turns" or words to that effect and drubbed the Meat-men 6 to 0 with Bob Jones giving only three hits. He fanned four and walked one.

Just to show how easy the McClarrens, usually heavy-hitters were for Jones' slants the following figures are presented: The losers never had more than one runner on base at a time; only two men reached third base; Ferguson after his scratch infield hit in the fifth, the first hit off Jones, and Miller after his double to left in the sixth; only five men were on base all evening, Bliss walking in the third, Davis on A. Jones' bad throw to first in the fourth, D. Ferguson in the fifth, Miller in the blaze from spreading to adjoining office buildings.

FLAMES RAZE

USE FIRE TOWERS
Sparks from the conflagration started a small blaze on the roof of a next-door building, but the firemen, erecting two fire towers, extinguished the blaze before it had gained headway.

The first alarm was turned in at 2:10 a. m., and the fire burned for hours. It left the walls of the building standing but the roof caved in and the structure was ruined beyond repair.

Built before the era of motion pictures, the theater was one of the oldest in the city. In latter years, it had been transformed into a motion picture show but fortunately the last performance of yesterday evening had been completed a few hours before the fire broke out.

Origin of the blaze was not known. Hundreds of spectators, some of them in night clothes from nearby hotels, rushed to the scene as flames lighted the skies over the city. Police maintained order.

FIREMEN INJURED
Several firemen were slightly hurt in fighting the blaze. Some of them were knocked to the street by streams of water from the hoses, misdirected because of the heavy clouds of smoke.

The theater was originally known as the Athenaeum and by several names later, including the Schubert. Nearly every star of the legitimate stage of the last three-quarters of a century trod its boards.

NEW STUDIO OPENS

The opening of a new photographic studio in the rooms over Joseph's store, formerly occupied by Mitchell's studio, was announced yesterday by Miss Virginia Salvers, proprietor of the new place.

Miss Salvers comes here from Lancaster where she has been associated with her father for the past five years in this line of work. She is experienced in all kinds of photography but will confine her activities here to portrait work and amateur filming.

She states that her place of business will be located here permanently and will be known as the Salvers Studio.

Mitchell, who operated a studio here for a number of years has moved his equipment to Zanesville, O.

Hoover Plans to Fish

KEMMERER, Wyo.—Herbert Hoover will visit the Green River valley and the Jackson Hole country on a fishing trip this summer, probably early in August, according to word received here by former State Senator P. W. Jenkins. The former president notified Jenkins that he would probably be accompanied by Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur.

China Turns to Air in Building Defense

To the air, New China has turned in order to obtain military importance denied her on the ground by foreign powers. Since 1931 when free lance flyers like Robert Short and Bert Hall fought Japanese planes over Shanghai, Chinese air strength has increased from 40 to over 300 modern combat and bombing ships. Major Jimmy Doolittle and Lieut. Col. Frank Hawks, U. S. speed aces, have been in China for months demonstrating the prowess of latest American models, meanwhile, incurring Japanese hostility at their successful salesmanship. At Hankow is located the largest airfield and training school in Asia, equipped with hangars, shops and dormitories.

Miss Buchanan, John Richards Wed Thursday

Their newly-furnished home in Carrollton was the scene of the marriage of Miss Margaret Buchanan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Buchanan, S. Pickaway-st., this city, and Mr. John L. Richards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Richards of Carrollton, Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Rev. A. B. Reid, of the United Presbyterian church, read the nuptials in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends.

Miss Grace Achamer, of Carrollton, and Mr. Joseph Richards, of Cleveland, brother of the bridegroom, served as maid of honor and best man.

A powder blue gown of mouseline de sole fashioned floor length was worn by the bride. She wore pink slippers and accessories and carried pink rosebuds.

Miss Achamer was attired in a yellow floor length gown and carried yellow roses.

Pastel shades were carried out in the home decorations for the wedding and dinner following. Attending from here besides the bride's family was Miss Minnie Lyle.

Immediately after the dinner and reception, the couple left for a trip on the lakes and in Canada. Upon their return they will reside on Lincoln-ave in Carrollton.

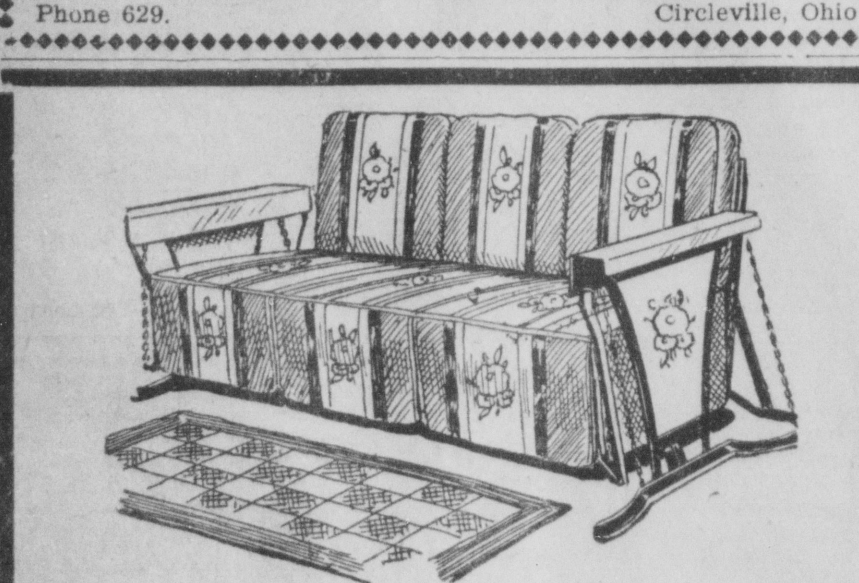

Mrs. Richards is a graduate of the Carrollton high school and attended Ohio university normal school at Athens. For the past two years she has been a teacher in the Wayne-twp school.

Mr. Richards graduated from the law school of the University of Florida in Gainesville and also attended Case School of Technology at Cleveland. He is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity. He is practicing law in Carrollton and at present is the county's representative in the legislature.

Survives Death Swim

Margaret Bott

Found bound by rope with the lifeless body of her mother, pretty Margaret Bott, above, 22-year-old Chicago girl, has been rescued from Lake Michigan, unconscious but still alive, following an alleged double suicide attempt. Ascertained fearing a third operation for mastoid, the girl and her mother, Mrs. Alice King Bott, allegedly tied themselves together, and swam out into the lake, seeking death. Revived after her rescue, the girl told authorities "we wanted to die together."

Nine members of the Pickaway Plains chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, motored to Lancaster, Thursday, to meet with the Lancaster chapter D. A. R. for a Flag Day celebration. Members of the Logan chapter were also guests.

A luncheon was enjoyed at 1 o'clock at the Lancaster Country club followed by an appropriate program.

Mrs. James P. Moffitt and Mrs. Helen Black Anderson, local members, took part in the program.

Mrs. Moffitt sang "Ah 'Tis a Dream," by Hawley and "Little Boy Blue," by Joyce.

Mrs. Anderson gave greetings from the Pickaway Plains chapter and read a poem, "The Flag Goes By."

Attending the interesting meeting from here besides Mrs. Moffitt and Mrs. Anderson were Mrs. Orion King, Mrs. Emmitt L. Crist, Mrs. C. C. Watts, Miss Edith Haswell, Mrs. George P. Foreman, Mrs. Frank Bennett and Mrs. Harry Heffner.

Mrs. H. J. Dunlap of Williamsport, Mrs. Glenn Nickerson and Mrs. Clark Hunsicker attended a D. A. R. meeting of the Columbus chapter, Thursday.

BRIDGE CLUB ENTERTAINED

Two tables of bridge were assembled at the home of Mrs. Grady Randall, E. Mill-st., Thursday evening, when she entertained the members of her club.

Miss Virginia Marion, a guest, and Mrs. Franklin Kibler were winners of high score favors. Tempting refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mrs. Carl Wallace, W. Main-st., will entertain the club in two weeks.

FOUR PROGRAM PIANO RECITAL CONCLUDED

The annual piano recital of the students of Mrs. Leon Van Vliet, W. High-st., which was extended this year to four programs because of the increase in the enrollment of the class, was concluded Thursday evening.

The students were equally divided in programs on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons and evenings. On each occasion the studio was filled with an appreciative audience, the younger pupils vying well with the senior students for popularity.

At three of the programs Miss Mary May Haswell, vocal pupil of Mrs. R. P. Heiskell, favored the audience with vocal solos, in her rich mezzo soprano voice.

Miss Mary Kathryn Baker opened the senior program Thursday evening by giving her version of the famous composer of the past and composers of modern classics. She played "Two Larks," by Leschetizky, greatest teacher in history, and "The Crap Shooters," by Lane, a composer of modern classics.

Pupils and audience so enjoyed the ensemble work of the past few years that Mrs. Van Vliet increased the eight and twelve hand selections in order to have different pupils in them each day.

The Thursday evening program follows:

"Two Larks," Leschetizky and "The Crap Shooters," Lane—Mary Kathryn Baker; "Music Box," Liebiech—Wahnta Barnhart; "Marcie di Bravura," Dutton—Lucille May; "Fantasie de Concert," Ryder—Eleanor R. McCabe; "The Banjo Player," Stillwell—Glenn McCoy; duet, "Ojos Criollos," Gottschalk—Glady Noggle and Mrs. Van Vliet; "Secund Mazurka," Godard—Glady Noggle; vocal solos, "Summer," Chaminade, "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair," Haydon—Mary May Haswell accompanied by Mrs. Van Vliet; "Majesty of the Deep," Hamer—Eleanor Stout; "Fluttering Leaves," Koelling—Eyer Dreisbach; "Maiden's Prayer," Badarzewska—Dorothy Howell.

"Arabesque," Helmund and "Valse—Impromptu," Upercraft—Virginia Dreisbach; two piano duet, "Camp of Glory," Holst—June West and Junior Mowery; "Piqua Dame," Bohm—Eleanor Dreisbach; "Second Valse," Godard—Helen Hill, second piano, Virginia Dreisbach and Eleanor Dreisbach; "Pizzicati," Delibes and "Clicking Castanets," Williams—Betty Weiler; "Spooks and Shadows," Adams—June West; "Country Garden," Grainger—Jean Theobald; "Home Sweet Home," Thalberg—Martha Belle Ferguson; "Seminaride," Rossini—first piano, Martha Belle Ferguson, Wahnta Barnhart, June West and second piano, Glady Noggle, Lucie May and Junior Mowery.

RELIEF PROBLEM REVERTS TO COUNTY

Contest on Tugwell Identifies Democratic Critics of President

WASHINGTON — Few of the people who fought to get into the Senate Caucus Room the other day, or strained their ears to catch the words of Professor Rexford Guy Tugwell, caught the significance of the show they were watching.

To most it was a political free-for-all, a bull-baiting performance with Senators Byrd and Smith waving a red flag in the face of the No. 1 Brain Truster trying to get him to acknowledge Red allegiance.

Actually it was one of the most significant incidents which has occurred since March 4, 1933. It explains:

Why Roosevelt is having such a desperate struggle getting his Congressional floor leaders to go down the line on the Wagner Labor Bill.

Why the Democratic House Banking committee, at the behest of building and loan association lobbyists, emasculated the President's housing program.

Why the President's old age pension and unemployment insurance plans failed of consideration this session, had to be laid over until next year with a face-saving message which was chiefly a stump speech.

Why the appointment of Dr. Willard L. Thorp was withdrawn, despite the fact that for nine months he had filled with signal competence his post as Director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

It explains, in short, why the biggest test of the New Deal comes from the party supposed to keep it in power.

It explains also why the Democratic Party in recent years has been generally more successful in municipal and state elections than the G. O. P., but at the same time failed to put anyone in the White House.

Conflict

No other single incident in the past year so clearly and definitely reveals to the public light what an inchoate, unwieldy, conflicting, highly individualistic mass this thing called the Democratic party really is.

In the true sense of the word it is not a national party. It is an aggregate of sectional, local, and above all, personal elements — including some of the most brilliant, able, idealistic leaders in Congress — always tempted by the pull of sectionalism and personality.

It is of profound significance that Cleveland, Wilson, and Franklin Roosevelt, each was swept into office on waves of internal upheaval and unrest.

The great mass of the electorate wanted a new deal, a change of faces and names, and turned to the only political alternative, a Democrat.

The party, of course, claimed the victory.

But it wasn't the party that was elected. It was the forthright Cleveland, the reforming Wilson, and the New Deal Roosevelt.

Anti-New Dealers

Opposition to reconfirmation of Tugwell as Under Secretary of Agriculture was not a matter of principle or even politics. It was pure personal.

The Democrats who raised the hue and cry against him were: Harry Flood Byrd, wealthy Virginia land-owner, one of the greatest apple-orchardists in the country, and a vigorous opponent of crop reduction.

Joshua William Bailey, wealthy corporation lawyer from North Carolina, and an outstanding Democratic critic of the New Deal.

Elison (Cotton) Ed Smith, South Carolina cotton planter, an old, bombastic party wheel-horse, who just now is the subject of considerable comment, both in his State and Washington, as a result of the disclosure that he has two daughters, and a prospective son-in-law, on the Congressional payroll. One of the daughters has been living in South Carolina.

The appointment of the commission

MANY ENTER CONTESTS AS FILING DEADLINE ARRIVES

MISS DUNGAN HAS CONTEST

Miss Justus, of Lancaster, Files; Crites, Reichelderfer in Race

DUDLESON QUILTS

Dr. Phillips to Run for County Coroner

The county board of election office in the city building was one of the busiest spots in town today as the deadline for filing petitions for office drew near. At 6:30 p. m. all petitions must be filed and any presented after this time will be invalid.

As the deadline drew near, the following late developments were noted:

Miss Jennima Dungan, E. Mill-st., candidate to succeed herself as Democratic state committeewoman from the 11th congressional district, will be opposed by Miss Josephine Justus, of Lancaster.

CRITES, REICHELDERFER IN
Two more candidates for the Democratic nomination for representative to the general assembly, H. M. Crites and N. E. Reichelderfer, filed their petitions today. It was reported both would run but neither had made an announcement. Filing their petitions is enough to assure their candidacies. Clark Hunsch, and A. H. Crowner are also in the race on the Democratic ticket.

A ninth Democratic candidate for county recorder appeared with the announcement that Oscar Woelker, Circleville-twp. constable, had filed his petition for the office.

The name of Loren Dudleson, Pickaway-twp. farmer, as a Democratic candidate for county commissioner against John W. Hay of Harrison-twp., was withdrawn from the race.

DR. PHILLIPS RUNS
Dr. G. D. Phillips, N. Court-st., announced that he will be a Republican candidate for county coroner. Dr. C. E. Bowers, Democratic incumbent, announced that he would not seek re-election.

Oscar Turner, S. Scioto-st., was circulating a petition seeking the Republican nomination for county treasurer.

At noon today, there were a large number of petitions still to be filed. According to M. B. Trout, clerk of the board of elections, only 22 petitions had been filed at that time. These included:

Arthur L. Wilder, Democrat, clerk of courts; Hulda Reed, Democrat, clerk of courts; Hilda Burns, Republican, county recorder; Earl L. Hoffman and Frank A. Anderson, Democrats, county treasurer; Elizabeth Kline Davison, Marion R. Lutz, Alice E. Roof, Leonard Schleicher, Oscar Woelker and J. Luther Bower, Democrats, county recorder; J. W. Adkins, Democrat, common pleas judge; M. A. Sensesbrenner, Republican, representative to the General Assembly; H. M. Crites, and N. E. Reichelderfer, Democrats, representatives to the General Assembly; Charles H. Radcliff and John G. Ward, Democrats, sheriff; Clifford M. White, Democrat, county auditor; John W. Hay, Democrat, and C. Edward Wright, Republican, county commissioner; Forrest Short, Republican, county auditor, and Ray W. Davis, Republican, prosecuting attorney.

This afternoon was expected to see most of the remaining candidates weigh into the fights officially by filing their petitions.

COMMITTEE CONTEST
A contest for Democratic central committeeman in Deer Creek-twp. was seen today when Samuel

DISTRICT BEAUTY PARLOR INSPECTOR IS LOGAN RESIDENT

Letha Lou Burgess, of Logan, has been named inspector for the state division of cosmetology in the 11th Ohio district, which includes Pickaway-co. It was announced today.

Other counties in the district are Perry, Fairfield, Ross and Hocking.

GUNSETT'S SON HERE

Luther Gunsett, of Van Wert, son of Dan J. Gunsett, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, was visiting friends in Circleville Friday.

Hunt Assailant of Five Women

A widespread search has been launched for an apparently demented youth who has attacked five women in Defiance, O. The fifth victim of the assailant, Miss Rosemary Mansfield, left, 16-year-old daughter of a Defiance attorney, is shown with her sister, Kathryn, 15, recovering from a stab wound in the right shoulder. The girl was stabbed in broad daylight while walking in a residential district.

KIDNAPER OF 3 IS CAUGHT

Joseph Palmer, Escaped Convict, Caught Without Struggle; Had Freed Trio.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 15.—Joseph Palmer, southwestern desperado who escaped prison at Houston, Tex., and is wanted for murder in Tennessee, today was captured on a highway here without a struggle after releasing three kidnap victims.

Palmer, an associate of the late Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker, the cigar-smoking gun-girly, had just freed a baseball official, a policeman and a veterinarian whom he had kidnapped in Davenport, Ia., 24 hours before.

The victims were Al Schultze, secretary of the Davenport Western league baseball club; Dr. W. H. Fitch, veterinarian of Walcott, Ia., and Policeman Elmer Schlueter of Davenport.

He had robbed his three victims during a wild all-night ride through Iowa and Missouri country roads.

Palmer escaped from prison at Houston when Barrow raided the institution for that express purpose. Barrow and Miss Parker were shot to death in a police ambush recently.

The escaped desperado carried two loaded Colt automatic pistols when he was captured by a squad of heavily armed officers riding in a police car.

None of Palmer's three kidnaped victims suffered any injury, although they appeared visibly shaken after their night of terror.

CONVENTION OPENS

The 67th annual convention of the Pickaway-co Council of Religious Education was being held at the First Presbyterian church today with a good attendance.

Election of officers and an address by Dr. W. G. Clippinger, president of Otterbein College, Westerville, were to feature the afternoon sessions. Banners were also to be awarded to the winners of several contests.

An evening session will open at 7:45 o'clock.

CHARGES AGAINST WOMAN DISMISSED

Because of insufficient evidence, the charge against Anna Grace Thompson, this city, was dismissed by Judge C. C. Young in probate court Thursday. Her husband, Roy Thompson, charged that she contributed to the delinquency of her minor children.

Tom A. Reutck was attorney for Mrs. Thompson and Sterling Lamb represented Thompson.

TRUAX READY TO JOIN RACE

Arrives in Columbus With Petitions; To Make Decision Late Today.

COLUMBUS, June 15.—Congressman-at-large Charles V. Truax arrived here from Washington today, with the announced intention of filing either for the Democratic nomination for U. S. senator or for re-nomination for congressman-at-large before the deadline at 6:30 p. m.

Truax spent the forenoon in conference with his advisers. He professed to be undecided which way he would file, but assured the writer it would be for one office or the other and not for both with the intention of withdrawing from one at a later date.

"My decision will be made late this afternoon," he said. "My nominating petitions for either office are all ready to file with the secretary of state."

If Truax decides to plunge into the hectic Democratic senatorial primary the race will be a four-corner affair with Gov. George White, former Gov. A. V. Donahy, who gave Truax his start in state politics, and Congressman Charles West, Garville, bearing the endorsement of the "New Deal" in the other three corners.

Injured in Initial Round, Says Carnera

NEW YORK, June 15.—While admitting today that he never recovered from the effects of the first punch, Primo Carnera, former champion revealed he sprained his ankle in the first round of his fight with Max Baer.

"I sprained my ankle either on the first punch or trying to run in the first round when I am hurt while I am still cold," Primo said.

Lonnie Keaton Faces Charges in Ross-Co

Lonnie Keaton, former Circleville resident, well known in police circles, is facing two serious charges in Ross-co. It was learned today.

Sheriff's officers arrested Keaton at his home in Paint-twp. Ross-co, this week on a charge of operating a still. He pleaded guilty to a charge of manufacturing liquor but the case has not been settled.

A charge of carrying concealed weapons has also been lodged against Keaton by Deputy Sheriff Don Lowery who says that when arrested he ran from the officers with a gun in his hand.

GREEN, LEADER OF UNION MEN, PLEADS DELAY

Wants Unions to Ask FDR to Name "Impartial Board of Three"

VOTE LATE TODAY

Chances Favorable for Delay in Walk-Out

PITTSBURGH, June 15.—As a means of averting the threatened nation-wide steel strike, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, made a dramatic appearance before the 'strike convention' here today and advocated that steel workers propose that President Roosevelt appoint an "impartial board of three members" to settle all controversial issues in the steel industry.

The special convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin workers, in session considering the question of a steel strike locked with applause as Green offered his proposal.

"DECLARED OFF"
If this proposal is accepted by all sides—the steel workers, the operators and the government—that the strike should be declared off," Green asserted in ringing tones.

Green urged the men to accept the proposal "in good faith" and assured them it would have the full support of the American Federation of Labor.

Green told the 188 union delegates he was talking to them "as a coal miner to steel workers" and that he fully appreciated their situation and was in hearty sympathy with their plight.

He counseled against a strike at this time, saying:

"We must employ strategy—we must meet the issue with an issue."

He declared he was convinced that public opinion would force the steel owners to "let up" on the "persecution" of the steel worker.

"The time will come," he cried, "when the accumulated wrongs of years will be righted."

BOWEN NAMED CITY TEACHER

Canal Winchester Man to Succeed Povenmire; Employed During Part of Year.

Roy H. Bowen, of Canal Winchester, was employed Thursday evening by the board of education as successor to E. Kingsley Povenmire, who resigned during the week as instructor of dramatics, public speaking and English.

Mr. Bowen served as a special teacher at the high school during part of the past school year. He took Mr. Povenmire's duties when the latter was in the hospital then served part-time from then until the end of the year.

Mr. Bowen is a graduate of Otterbein college where he was an honor student.

It is expected the board will complete its teaching staff next week.

Henderson Cites Cause of Action

"Justice of Rest of State" is His Declaration; Says Pickaway Commissioners Tried to Do Same as Mahoning-Co Dads; State Upheld By Court Decision.

COLUMBUS, June 15.—"Justice for the rest of the state..."

That was the explanation today by Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson, chairman of the state relief commission, of the commission's action in ordering all federal and state relief funds withdrawn from Pickaway-co on July 1 unless the commissioners of the county restore relief funds allegedly improperly diverted.

All state relief commission activities were withdrawn, FERA works division projects, handout and distribution of surplus relief commodities in the county stopped at the end of this month unless the situation is corrected, Henderson declared.

BASED ON REPORT
The commission's action was based upon a report recently submitted to State Auditor Joseph Tracy by R. B. Beverly, state examiner.

Beverly's report held that the county commissioners improperly transferred $12,801 from relief funds to the county poor infirmary fund, and $4,087 to the county general fund. The report was based upon a study of the county's relief records from Dec. 1, 1933, to May 26, 1934.

"The Pickaway commissioners are trying the Youngstown idea," Henderson declared. "The commission had no choice in the matter—it would not be fair to the rest of the counties unless the relief funds were ordered withdrawn."

"However, if the commissioners remedy the situation at any time before July 1, the present relief set-up will continue," he said.

The only basis on which the state commission will continue to provide federal and state relief funds to the county will be for the commissioners to return the full amount of the diversions to the relief funds, from which expenditures may be made only upon authorization by the commission.

Henderson referred to the recent Mahoning-co incident when he said

DOWDY TAKES FEDERAL JOB; AGENT NEEDED

Farm Authority Who Came Here to Administer Program is Advanced

Guy Dowdy, who has served efficiently as Pickaway-co's agricultural agent, has resigned to accept a position with the Agricultural Adjustment administration, it has been announced.

The farm authority was approached by government officials and was offered the post as director of compliance for Ohio. His duties will take him over the entire state. His headquarters will be in Columbus.

The farmer bureau directors have been called for a meeting tonight at which time a successor as farm agent will be discussed with possible action to be taken.

CAME TEMPORARILY
Mr. Dowdy came here early in the summer as crop administrator under the government's wheat reduction program. He organized the county and did noble work in this project with the result that at its conclusion he was offered the position of agricultural agent filling a job that had been left vacant since the resignation of H. Stanley Lewis. He accepted.

When the corn-hog program came along Mr. Dowdy again was a leading figure in the county organization.

His addresses before various organizations proved very beneficial in putting the various programs of the government before the general public. He was a fluent speaker.

SECRETARIES NAMED
G. H. Armstrong, of Salter Creek-twp., has been elected to succeed Mr. Dowdy as secretary of the wheat reduction program and Marvin Steeley is secretary of the corn-hog reduction program.

HERBERT TO TALK

Paul M. Herbert, of Columbus, Republican candidate for the nomination of lieutenant governor, subject to the August primaries, will be the principal speaker at a meeting of the Pickaway-co Republican club to be held Friday, June 29, it was announced today.

Canary's Broken Leg Set; Physicians Busy

BUENOS AIRES, June 15.—Surgeons at City hospital today were battling with all their medical skill to save the leg of "Mickey," a yellow canary.

"Mickey," whose home is in a cage at the hospital, suffered a broken leg when a strong gust of wind blew through a window and upset his cage.

Dr. W. L. Yoemans, prominent surgeon, set the fracture but to date it has refused to mend. It was hoped, however, that with further medical care, "Mickey" would recover.

CCC YOUTH DROWNS

LOGAN, June 15.—Drowned while swimming in Floyd's Pond, near here, the body of Clyde Crawford, 21, enrolled at the Logan Civilian Conservation corps camp, was sent today to his home in Middletown, O., for burial.

The youth's companions said he was a poor swimmer and got in distress in 25 feet of water. It was two hours after he drowned before his body was recovered.

STATE TO END ALL ITS HELP; KRINN REPLIES

Deputy Auditor Says Examiner Studied Books, Never Returned to City

'COULD BE ADJUSTED'

All Projects, Food Supplies to Be Closed

Pickaway-co's relief problem was placed squarely on the shoulders of the county commissioners, John W. Hay, Burr Rader, and Ralph May, today after the state relief commission announced that all state and federal relief sent the county will be concluded June 30.

The relief commission in a statement Thursday afternoon charged the county improperly diverted relief money to the infirmary fund and to the general fund. A sum of $12,801 was transferred in the former case and $4,087 in the latter, the state charges.

ONE STIPULATION
The relief commission's stipulation in its blunt statement is that this money be restored to the relief fund prior to July 1. If that case state and federal money will continue to be sent, otherwise it all ceases and all relief will be up to the commissioners.

The contention today was that the commissioners would take care of the problem and handle all relief alone, without aid of the state, will end with the state's relief June 30. The status of the National Reemployment office was unsettled but it was believed, too, would be closed. R. B. Beverly is acting relief director and James Shear is acting manager of the NRO office.

Neither the county auditor's office, the relief director's office nor the Re-employment office have received official notification from the state concerning its action.

KRINN IN STATEMENT
T. D. Krinn, deputy auditor, was angered Thursday when he learned the relief commission had given publicity to the matter before making its decision known to the commissioners. He said he believed the matter could have been suitably adjusted had the report of the examiner, R. B. Beverly, been submitted to the commissioners.

Mr. Krinn's statement follows: "The facts are that on Dec. 31, 1933, the commissioners sold $20,000 worth of bonds for the purpose of buying materials for Civil Works projects. The relief director went to Columbus with the bills to be paid from the fund and was informed they did not have to be approved by the state relief commission.

"On March 24, 1934, the examiners came in and informed us we had used more money for materials than we could spend out of the $20,000 bond issue. The rest of the bond issue for direct outside relief we had been charging to the poor fund.

TOLD TO TRANSFER
"The examiners instructed us to transfer the amount of money we had spent for outside relief amounting to $2,011.85 and this charge was made against the C. W. A. fund. This action is now held to be illegal.

"On May 25 and 26 the examiners again called at our office and to this date we have never seen any report the examiners have made. I am of the opinion that the matter could have been

MRS. DALL TO ASK DIVORCE IN RENO

RENO, Nev., June 15.—Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, only daughter of the president, is enroute to Reno to establish a residence. It was learned here today.

The assumption is that Mrs. Dall, after establishing residence, will apply for a divorce from her husband, Curtis B. Dall, from whom she has been living apart for little more than a year.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Elbert and family, Misses Nell and Minnie Mason, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Crist, Mrs. J. Wallace Crist, Miss Susie Wilson were among local persons who saw the Passion Play presented by German players at the Fair grounds in Lancaster Wednesday evening. The play was sponsored by the Lancaster Rotary and Rotary clubs.

ASHVILLE CLUB PLANNING TO BUILD CONCRETE FOUNDATION

ASHVILLE, June 15.—With the unanimous consent of council the Ashville Community club is sponsoring a movement to build a concrete foundation 38x80 feet to serve as a base for the new clubhouse. The purpose of the movement is to guarantee the sum sufficient to guarantee the project has already been raised by popular subscription, and ere long the soliciting committee, C. W. Squire and A. W. Graham, hopes to have sufficient pledges to finance it.

The site selected as best suited for the purpose lies between the park's main entrance and the cinder track just south of the band stand and bleachers. Stakes were set Thursday morning and men set to work to clear the ground. It is planned to have the work completed within the next week.

TRIPLE PURPOSE

This added improvement will serve a triple purpose. It will be used to stage the big dance on the afternoon and evening of the Fourth and will provide ample room for Montana Meechy and his cowboy musicians to "strut their stuff." The club has been handicapped in the past by having too small platform but with the new floor all who desire to "trip the light fantastic toe" can be accommodated.

It will also serve as a tennis court in season which will be welcome news to all lovers of this popular sport. And last but not least its ultimate use will be to form a lasting foundation for a commodious shelter house for the comfort of our guests.

SPIRIT GOOD ONE

The civic spirit manifested by the club, and especially the special committee Messrs Squire, Graham and Brinker, is admired and the generous response from our business and professional men and our many friends is most gratifying to the community at large.

The United States, says Einstein in his new book, by "collection of its war debts without any consideration" is contributing to the moral decadence of Europe. Well, how many have we collected, professor?

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

THE ENGLISH like to tell stories about American tourists that don't know anything. As a matter of fact, you'll find that a lot of American tourists are too smart to believe anything the guides tell them. But the English get a lot of fun out of making believe that the Americans are awful ignorant, just because some of the Americans were never in England before.

They tell about an American tourist that was being shown the ruins of an old bridge in England. "It's over two thousands years old," says the guide. "You can't get away with them rock and built stories with us," says the tourist. "Two thousand years? Why it's only 1930 now, and if you can figure at all you can see that that's 70 years short of two thousands total. And it ain't likely that Adam built the bridge, any more."

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

ceedly able and attractive Tugwell was not really at stake. There was no question of either his ability or character.

What these three Old Guards were striking at, the objective of fire and antics, was the New Deal, more specifically the man in the White House—who personifies the New Deal.

All through the special session last year, and the six months of legislative activity this year, these men, plus others on the Democratic side in both branches of Congress, have fretted and muttered against Rooseveltian liberal policies, sometimes openly voted with Old Guard Republicans in opposition.

Roosevelt Critics

"You are just attacking the Administration, that's all," quietly remarked Iowa's Democratic Senator Louis Murphy to Smith, as the latter was elaborately explaining just why he was against the Tugwell appointment.

"I resent that," roared the bulky, drooping-mustachioed old Carolinian, "I won't stand for these dirty insinuations."

He launched into another flag-waving harangue. Murphy leaned back wearily. Other members of the committee exchanged knowing glances. They knew that there was much reason for Smith's frenzied denial.

Real Reason

Cotton Ed has been sore for some time. And chiefly because of his Democratic colleague from South Carolina. The latter—Jimmy Byrnes—is one of Roosevelt's most trusted Congressional advisers. Cotton Ed, after 25 years in the Senate, is not.

Byrd and Bailey have been among the most vitriolic critics of the New Deal. The result was the political free-for-all—Democrats lampooning Democrats, Republicans coming to the defense of the Administration, and the chief man criticised being not so much Tugwell, but Henry Wallace, his chief, and inferentially, the President himself.

The incident will go down in Congressional history along with the circus midget in J. P. Morgan's lap.

Merry-Go-Round

When it comes to the ladies, Illinois' bearded, grandiloquent Senator "Ham" Lewis can't be bothered with such obstacles as Senate rules. Introduced in a Capitol corridor to Miss Kyllikki Pohjoja, member of the Finnish Parliament "Ham" promptly invited her onto the Senate floor. . . . Senate rules prohibit this, but when doormen and guards tried to tell this to "Ham" he waved them aside with an august sweep of his arm. With a deep bow he ushered the foreign visitor into the chamber. Three of New York City's delegation in the House have the same first name and middle initial. They are John J. Boylan, John J.

LOANS REFINANCE FARM DEBT

A total of $479,400 of Federal land bank and Land Bank Commissioner's farm mortgage loans was made in Pickaway-co. from June 1, 1933, to May 1, 1934, according to the Farm Credit administration, Miss. Ethel Brobst, secretary-treasurer of the Pickaway-co. National Farm Loan association, announces.

Of this total, farmers in Pickaway-co. used approximately $427,100, or 89.1 per cent to refinance their indebtedness. By refinancing, farmers obtained new mortgage loans which they used to repay old debts. They generally reduced their annual interest charges in doing so. In a number of cases, scale-downs of indebtedness occurred in connection with the new loans. These and other advantages benefited farmers primarily. Secondly, creditors benefited from the receipt of cash or bonds in exchange for obligations they held.

MONEY DISTRIBUTED
Of the loan money used by farmers in Pickaway-co. for refinancing their debts, about $175,000, it was estimated, repaid their debts to banks; $30,200, their debts to insurance companies; $16,300, their taxes; $4,800, their debts to merchants; $200,800, their debts to "others" or creditors not separately classified, including private mortgage lenders, mortgage loan companies, retired farmers and many others to whom farmers were in debt.

A total of about $52,300 of loans in the county was used for purposes other than the refinancing of borrowers' debts. Of this sum, $20,700 was used for the purchase of land and equipment, the construction or improvement of buildings, and for general agricultural uses, including the provision of capital, while $22,600, the balance, was used for the purchase of stock in national farm loan associations, for loan fees, etc.

MISS DUNGAN

T. Schleich and Earl Baker filed their petitions. The candidacy of Miss Justus, who has been in the millinery business in Lancaster for the past 21 years, is expected to cause a split in the Democratic ranks in the 11th congressional district. Miss Dungan has secured the endorsements of several counties in the district, so a close race is expected.

It was not learned who was backing the candidacy of Miss Justus, although rumor had it that a prominent Democratic state politician, urged her to make the race.

A contest for Democratic state committeeman from the 11th district is also expected as Sen. James E. Ford of Chillicothe has announced that he will oppose Garret S. Claypool, also of the Ross-co seat, the incumbent.

Thomas P. White of Lancaster and Renick W. Dunlap of Pickaway-twp. Republicans, have filed their petitions in Chillicothe seeking the nomination of congressman from the 11th district.

OPPOSE UNDERWOOD
Mell G. Underwood of New Lexington, Democratic incumbent, will seek re-election and is expected to be opposed by John Mader, E. Main-st., H. B. Welch of Rockbridge, Hickocking-co; Dr. James M. Lantz of Lancaster, and Louis M. Day of Chillicothe.

Most of the Democratic and Republican county committee candidates had filed their petitions today. No contests were reported other than the one between Schleich and Baker in Deercreek-twp and that between Mack Parrett, Jr., and Earl Smith, Republicans, for committeeman of the First ward, this city.

adjusted had the report been submitted to the commissioners.

"A representative of the state relief commission in a personal interview at the commissioner's office on Wednesday, June 6, promised the commissioners a clean slate providing they would turn over the direct outside relief to the F. E. R. A. director, and the commissioners have not granted this request."

Mr. Krinn's statement was taken to be the official reply of the commissioners to the claim of improper diversion.

PROGRAM BROAD ONE

Just how extensive a program will be carried out by the commissioners in way of relief is a matter for conjecture. It is certain the commissioners have not been in sympathy with many of the programs of the government concerning relief activities. There has been no statement concerning their plans.

If the state carries out its announcement, and there is no reason to believe it will not, all government food, money for workers on relief jobs, the rural relief program and whatever else is being done will stop June 30. Persons who have been next to the relief situation believe the problem will become precarious.

Several projects now going on will be stopped before they are concluded unless the county intends to complete them. They include the airport job, Memorial hall and the canal project. Berger hospital landscaping, the north end sewer and work on the armory will be completed this month while the relief money is still coming in.

Mr. Weiler, relief director, has about 175 men on the relief lists being given work through the government projects.

SCHOOL BOARD ACTS

The Walnut-st. school project, started under CWA but delayed under FERA, will be handled by the school board alone, it was announced Friday. The board of education met Thursday evening to decide to advertise for bids on the remainder of the construction work. The bids will be opened at 7:30 p. m. next Tuesday.

CHINESE SLAY AMERICAN, 75, FOR $5 NOTE

PEIPING, China, June 15.—The Rev. Dr. J. H. Ingram, 75 years old, revered scholar of Chinese culture, was shot and killed early today by Chinese bandits for the $5 they found on his person.

Dr. Ingram, who was born in Philadelphia, was a leading promoter of cultural relations between America and China. He taught in the California College of China and his daughter, Mrs. Isabel Mayer, now of Baltimore, was the tutor of the empress of Manchukuo.

Dr. Ingram was sent to China years ago by the American Board of Missions.

The attack occurred at the Ingram's summer cottage 10 miles west of Peiping. Mrs. Ingram and three grandchildren escaped harm.

Returning to Peiping today with the body of her husband Mrs. Ingram told I-ternational News Service the details of the ghastly night with bandits trooping through all the rooms of the cottage shooting and looting.

The bandits entered and began trooping through all the rooms seeking money. In spite of his age and his calling Dr. Ingram grappled with them.

While one bandit held Mrs. Ingram in the bed, another shot her husband before her eyes. The first shot won't wound but the second killed him instantly.

The bandit's loot, $5, all the Ingrams had, and fled.

Mrs. Ingram lifted her husband's body to the bed and then herding the children in the next room told them stories until dawn to keep them from becoming hysterical.

It is believed that the bandits were soldiers who recently mutinied. Nelson T. Johnson, American minister to China, said the outrage occurred.

Japan's Ambitions

That Japan is not inclined to retreat any recent steps in foreign policy is indicated by Prince Fumimaro Kono, president of the Japanese house of representatives, who is now on a visit in the United States.

In an interview in New York, Prince Kono outlined some of Japan's present aims as he sees them. Although emphasizing that he was not attempting to speak officially for the Japanese government, his statement can be interpreted only as reflecting an official viewpoint.

Japan will not return to the League of Nations, he said, "until the League changes its views on the Far Eastern situation."

Defending Japan's action in Manchuria, he justified this "not only in grounds of self-defense, but from the standpoint of what was necessary for the welfare of all the nations in the Far East."

Further purposes of Japan were outlined as including freedom for Japanese to live in any part of the world they choose, and unrestricted interchange of goods and commodities with all countries on the globe.

It is evident, from the prince's views, that Japan is due to occupy a prominent position in future international problems. Her aims, outside of her demand for naval parity, are of a kind to come into conflict with recognized policies of other powers.

It would seem to mean simply sticking to things as they are, the prince was quoted as saying, "then the Japanese people are not satisfied; they are looking for the establishment of international justice."

And it would seem that they want themselves to be the judge of what constitutes international justice.

In other words, Japan has formulated a definite program of expansion irrespective of the interests of other nations, and is determined to see it carried out.

Its course in China represents justice in the Japanese conception, but the world has another word for it. And it may be that Tokyo will find that it is much easier to formulate than to execute programs when these came into conflict with the interests of countries able to defend themselves.

The Backwoods Doctor

THE world must admire the quiet, business-like way in which Dr. J. A. Dafeo, the little Canadian backwoods physician, has gone about his duties of caring for the five girl babies suddenly thrust upon him.

Whatever may be the fate of the quintuplets (and there is general hope that they will live and thrive), medical history will have failed in its mission if it does not reserve a place for a few lines to this general practitioner. Dr. Dafeo has not been blinded to his duties or spoiled in any manner by the floodlight of publicity turned upon him and his charges.

The doctor had none of the conveniences of a hospital or even of a comfortably equipped home to aid him in the outset. From far and wide have come incubators and other things since news of his plight reached the outside world, but at first he had to depend exclusively upon his own resources and the crudest of equipment. Six lives were at stake. He had seen 1,500 babies come into the world in his 28 years of practice, but never quintuplets. The fact that these had been born prematurely increased the hazards facing them.

The task of keeping them alive, to many a physician similarly placed would have seemed an impossible one. But not to Dr. Dafeo; for if it did he did not show his fears.

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

"You're an awfully sweet child, Val," Perry told her softly, smiling straight into her eyes with his own half-closed, caressing blue-eyes. "So I've been told."

Perry replaced his lighter, continued to smile at her. "It would be very easy to love you, Valerie. He reached for her hand, held it lightly, carelessly."

"It would be very easy to let you—love me, Perry." She left her hand in his. Between them a faint cloud of smoke rose and floated ceilingward. The old room was curiously still and filled with shadows and the drifting little breeze, and the steady ticking of the old clock on the mantel.

"I may remind you of that sometime," Perry said evenly. "I wouldn't if I were you," returned Valerie just as evenly, and she slid her hand out of his.

"What's for me to decide?" She shrugged. "Have a nice time up north?"

"Quite—worried a bit about Stanley, though. She was in a rather unsettled mood when I left."

"Well, she's not now. Quite the opposite. She's going to have a baby, Perry."

"She's going to have—what?" "A baby, stupid. People do, you know?" She smiled at him, looked away swiftly.

"So that's the solution, is it?" Perry spoke slowly as though he were thinking aloud. "All this hue and cry about love and desire and little old nature steps in and macks us one in the face and arranges matters to suit herself." He looked at Valerie, grinned suddenly. "You know, Val, my dear, I'm tremendously relieved—this honesty and whatnot—and then sort of settles things, don't you think?"

Val met his eyes gravely. "A baby usually does, I've noticed."

"And you think it will for Stanley?" "I think so. She tried to tell me a lot of nonsense about not living with John Harmon any more. I don't know what it was all about exactly—but anyhow she hasn't mentioned it again."

"She won't," he answered, smiling slowly, thoughtfully. "And John Harmon will come back and if she's wise she'll never even let him guess."

Valerie shook her head. "You don't know Stanley, Perry, she's so honest."

"You have lovely eyes, Valerie," he interrupted her irrelevantly. "And an exciting mouth. Sometimes, I'd like to kiss you—a lot."

"You wouldn't fool me, would you, mister?" "No," replied Perry softly, and his fingers found hers and tightened about them. "I wouldn't. Even if I could—I wouldn't."

John Harmon came back the second week in June. But it was Perry who met him at the boat and not Stanley.

"Do you mind, Perry?" she had asked him the night before. "I'd so much rather see him, first—alone."

And Perry had told her: "No, I don't mind at all—but promise me you'll be sensible."

She had smiled at him, a gravely unrevealing little smile. "I'll be the only way I can be, Perry. I'm not good at dissembling, it just isn't my way, that's all."

And he had had to be content with that and meet John Harmon's boat.

And now John Harmon, his face white with disappointment and nervous with apprehension, was closing tense fingers about his arm and demanding: "Where is Stanley, Perry? Why isn't he here?"

"She's quite all right, old man, and crazy to see you. But the heat, you know—and I expect she preferred having you to herself, rather than sharing you with this crowd."

John Harmon's grip relaxed, he laughed apologetically. "Of course. Crazy of me to have been so darned upset. How is she anyway, Perry?"

"Fine. You're looking pretty fit yourself—have a great trip?" "Great. It would have been wonderful if Stanley had been along—I missed her like the devil. D'you know, Perry, about three weeks ago I came near ditching Maynard and turning around and beating it home? We were in Rome and I had the queerest feeling—that something was wrong, you know—one night I lay awake for hours struggling against this feeling that something was happening to Stanley—to us, if you see what I mean. I thought I'd be all right in the morning—but I wasn't. But that night I slept all right and after that everything was okay again. Funny, wasn't it?" He looked at Perry inquiringly from beneath the brim of his hat, laughed briefly. "Just shows how a man's imagination will get the better of his common sense, doesn't it?"

"Yes," agreed Perry evenly, guiding his car through heavy traffic, "it certainly does."

Stanley stood at one of the front windows and saw the car drive up, saw John Harmon gather up his bags and leap out, saw Perry drive away, saw John Harmon run up the steps, two at a time.

She turned then and went to meet him. But she had only gone a few steps when he flung the door open and then closed it again, softly, behind him.

"Darling!" He held her tightly, his arms hard and punishing about her slim shoulders. For a moment they stood like this, then he put her away from him, laughed down at her with eyes that were a little frightened, a little pleading. "Don't cry like that, Stanley, it's not good for you. Besides, there's nothing to cry about, precious!"

"I know, I'm an awful little fool, John Harmon. I ought to be gay and beautiful—and excited! And instead of that, I'm all damp and smeared with tears and lip-stick! I'm all right, now, though—truly, I am." She smiled at him, lifting her chin gallantly.

John Harmon looked away swiftly. Suddenly, for some reason which he couldn't explain at all, he felt like crying too. And all the time he was thinking: "I've got to tell him, some time before tonight, I've got to tell him about the baby—about Drew. And I want to tell him about the baby but it will be hard telling him about Drew."

Yet she knew she would do it. Must do it. She meant to do it first. All her life she had done disagreeable things first. Saved all the nice things until last. It made doing the disagreeable things easier, knowing the nice things were there—waiting for her. But somehow she didn't.

And John Harmon, unpacking his bags, stopping to tell her about this or that, asking her if she remembered a certain little street or a restaurant or a shop, knew with a terrible certainty that he had not been away something had happened to Stanley. And terror gripped his heart and trembled in his soul and his hands would not stay steady, nor his voice, and as the afternoon wore on he looked at her less and less and talked more and more—or else he would surely have betrayed the fear that grew within him and said to her: "Whatever it is, Stanley, tell me, anything is better than not knowing."

And Stanley kept saying to herself: "Now I will tell him about Drew, and then, very quickly, about the baby and he will forget."

If a woman is a bit larger than she should be, it is the hardest thing in the world to find a simple frock which she can wear successfully. When she is covered up with capes and revers she is all right, but she doesn't always want to be like that! Here is the simplest sort of frock with not a thing to break the silhouette—but it shims its wearer perfectly. The vest,

But still she didn't. And finally it was not afternoon, at all but evening and they sat together on the divan and the room was very still and warm with only the tall blue candles lighted against the summer darkness. And John Harmon's arms lay very lightly about her shoulders and they were still talking lightly, and inconsequently, about many things—about everything, in fact, except the one thing that hung there between them, in the candle-light and the shadows and the thin, sweet, summer night.

Then quite suddenly she was telling him—not about Drew but about the baby. She said, slipping out of his arms, finding his eyes and clinging to them, "I'm going to have a baby, John Harmon—in December."

He stared at her for a minute, his eyes uncomprehending, then he laid his hands very quickly on her shoulders. "A baby? Are you sure, darling, quite sure?"

"Quite sure."

"I'm sorry, Stanley."

She stiffened beneath his hands, her eyes widened and grew very dark. "But I'm not sorry, John Harmon—I'm glad."

"You mean you love me—enough for that—you don't hate me for it, darling?"

Stanley closed her eyes. His hands were hurting her, so hard pressed they were into her slim arms. "No, it's you—who will hate me, John Harmon."

"What do you mean, Stanley?" Now his fingers were gripping her until it seemed she must cry out with pain, his voice was as tight and taut as a piece of stretched twine.

"While you were away, try and understand, John Harmon—Drew—"

"Drew," he repeated the word thickly, dully.

"Yes—"

"Stanley, you—"

"Wait, John Harmon, let me tell you—I want to tell you—"

"No. Don't tell me, Stanley, don't ever tell me." He laughed suddenly, shortly. His hands fell away from her arms. "It's quite all right—it was bound to happen, I suppose. I think I knew that it had happened. He stood up and walked away from her. He walked stiffly—like a man who was very ill or very drunk."

Stanley watched him go, her hands pressed against her mouth. Suddenly she heard herself talking, her voice thin and high above the clatter of her heart, choked with tears and something dangerously like laughter—hysterical, mad laughter. "You're crazy, John Harmon. I know what you think and it isn't so! I don't love Drew. I never did love him. I just wanted him—I wanted him terribly—more than I wanted you—more than I wanted anything—but I sent him away. Do you understand, John Harmon? I sent him away. And now all I want is you, darling, and your baby—"

And then, quite suddenly, they were both laughing and it all seemed very ridiculous and melodramatic and absurd. And John Harmon came back and sat beside her on the divan and held her tightly and the blue candles flickered on the high mantel and the chintz curtains moved gently in the little breeze. And in all the world there was no such person as Drew Armitage. In all the world there were just two people and the sweet, rather terrifying, but wholly enchanting possibility of a third person—a small, round, rumpled-headed third person.

THE BACKWOODS DOCTOR

THE world must admire the quiet, business-like way in which Dr. J. A. Dafeo, the little Canadian backwoods physician, has gone about his duties of caring for the five girl babies suddenly thrust upon him.

Whatever may be the fate of the quintuplets (and there is general hope that they will live and thrive), medical history will have failed in its mission if it does not reserve a place for a few lines to this general practitioner. Dr. Dafeo has not been blinded to his duties or spoiled in any manner by the floodlight of publicity turned upon him and his charges.

The doctor had none of the conveniences of a hospital or even of a comfortably equipped home to aid him in the outset. From far and wide have come incubators and other things since news of his plight reached the outside world, but at first he had to depend exclusively upon his own resources and the crudest of equipment. Six lives were at stake. He had seen 1,500 babies come into the world in his 28 years of practice, but never quintuplets. The fact that these had been born prematurely increased the hazards facing them.

The task of keeping them alive, to many a physician similarly placed would have seemed an impossible one. But not to Dr. Dafeo; for if it did he did not show his fears.

Dr. Dafeo seems to typify in the highest degree the old-time country doctor who felt himself qualified to tackle any medical or surgical problem arising in his community and among those he served, who usually could do this with remarkable success.

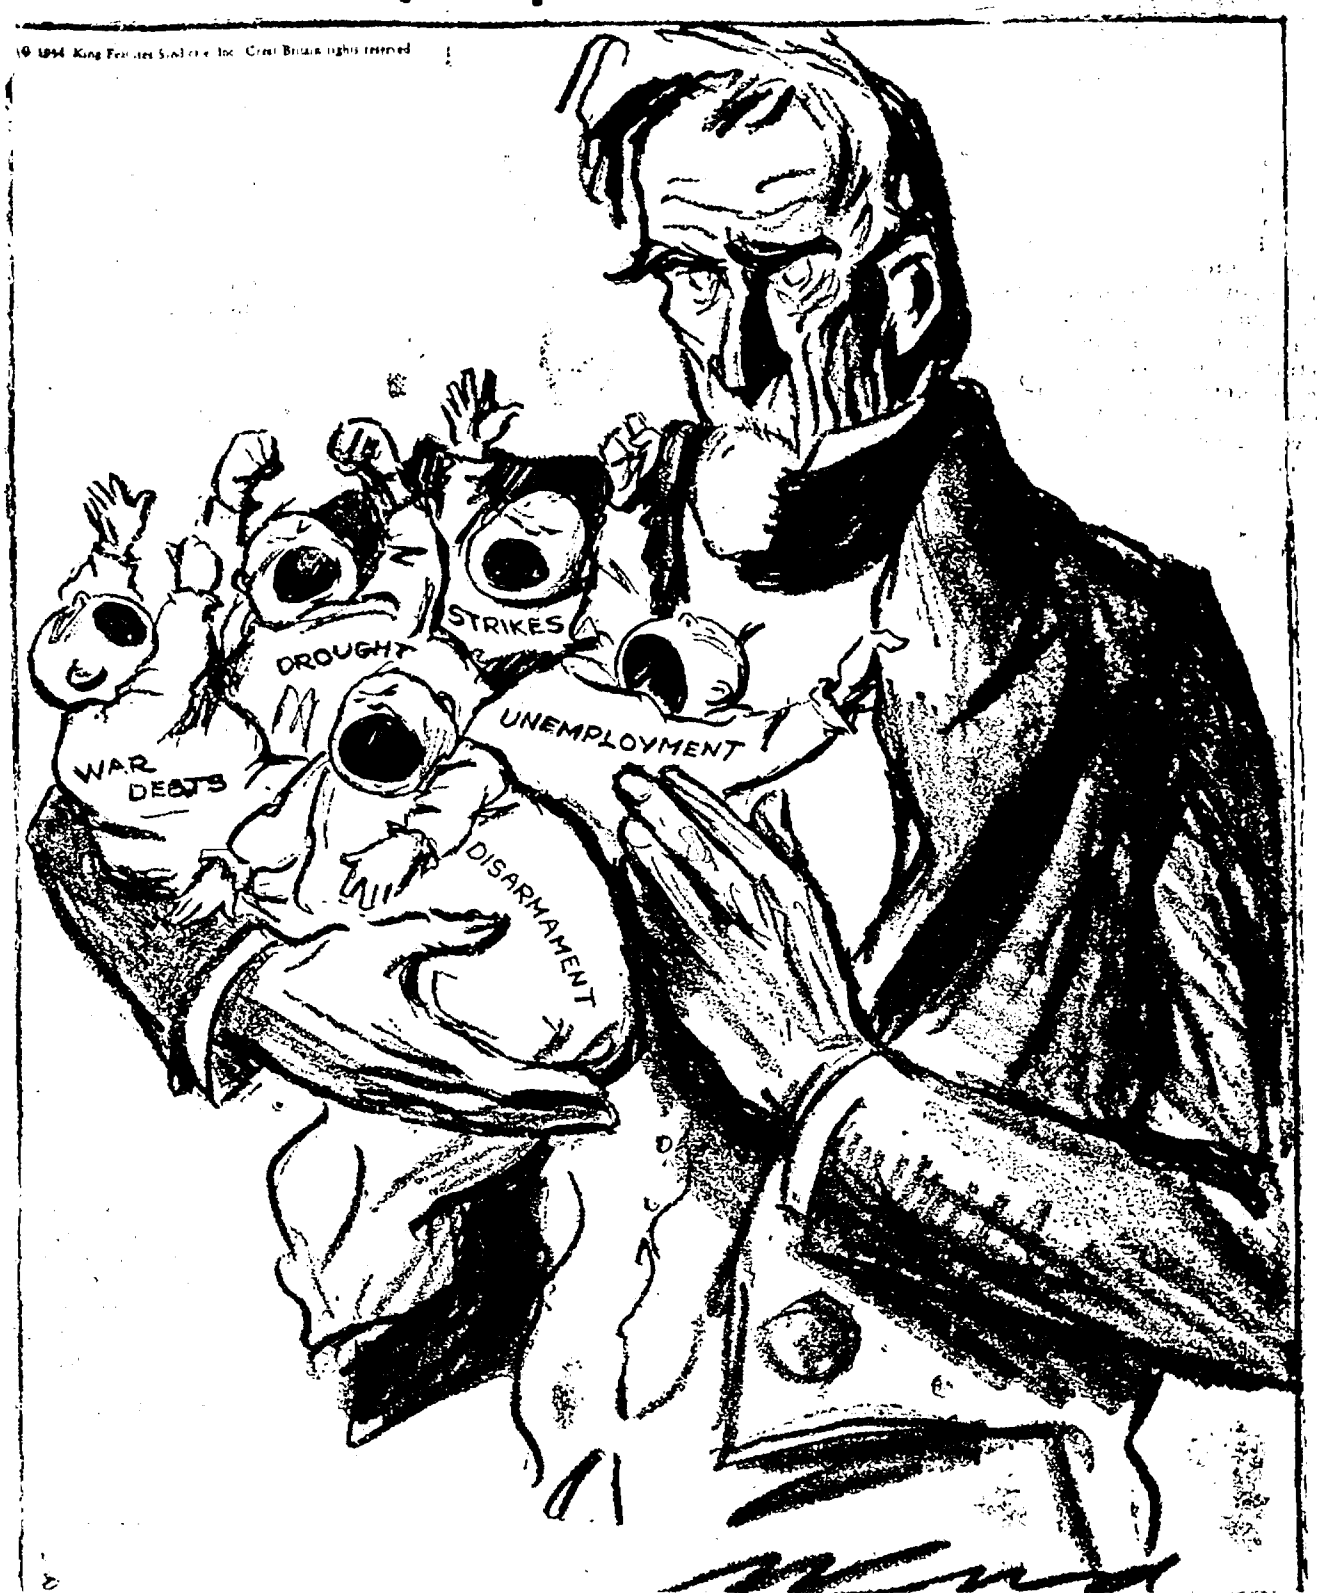

Dr. Dafeo "pulling" for the babies, should not forget that the problem is due the credit that is due him.

Quintuplets of His Own.

Recipes You Will Need For Summer Cookery Given by Mrs. George O. Thurn

Dear Readers in Circleville:

So many requests comes to me for various types of bread. And now that hot weather and sand-wich times here, this unusual rye bread may be doubly welcome. But remember that the bakers of today carry amazingly varied assortments of bread, and to lighten the cookery schedule, indulge the family in bought bread as often as you give them the home made varieties.

Swedish Rye Bread

One cake compressed yeast; two cups water; two teaspoons salt; one fourth cup dark cooking molasses; one fourth cup dark table molasses; five and one half cups flour; two and one half cups medium rye flour; two tablespoons shortening. Raisins if desired. Crumble yeast into bowl, add the water which has been scalded and cooled to 80 degrees F. (This is just cooler than lukewarm). The liquid mixture should be at 80 degrees F. When yeast is dissolved, add salt, cooking molasses and table molasses.

Sift flour once before measuring. Add all the flour at once to the liquid and work in thoroughly with the hands working in the softened shortening at the same time.

When the dough is thoroughly mixed, kneed it gently in the bowl or on a wet floured board until it is smooth. (Rye dough has a tendency to become much softer than other dough, but the softer and more pliable it is, the more tender loaf it will make).

Round up dough and set it to rise in a well greased bowl at 80 degrees to 85 degrees F. It should double its bulk in one and a half to two hours. (Depending upon the temperature of the room.)

Punch the dough by putting the closed fist in center and folding dough over with the hands. Turn the dough completely over and let rise to one and three fourths its bulk—about forty-five minutes to one hour. Punch dough down again and let stand for twenty minutes, or until it "comes back." Divide dough for three loaves, mold each loaf separately and let rise in pans to double in bulk—about one hour. (If raisins are added, use one-half cup for each loaf and add them when molding dough into loaves.)

Bake forty-five to fifty minutes at 425 degrees F., moderately hot oven.

Three bread pans two and three-fourths inches deep and four and one-half by eight and one-half inches across the top (or deep round pans) may be used.

For quicker process, two cakes of yeast may be used. For soft crust, brush loaves with butter when they come out of oven. Cover with towel.

Cole Slaw

Two cups chopped cabbage; two tablespoons vinegar; one egg well beaten; two tablespoons mayonnaise; one teaspoon sugar; one teaspoon baking powder; one teaspoon salt; one half teaspoon of pepper.

Chop cabbage and mix thoroughly with other ingredients.

Ham Loaf

One pound fresh ham ground; one pound smoked ham ground; eight crackers ground; one egg; one cup milk; one fourth teaspoon salt; one fourth teaspoon pepper; one teaspoon baking powder.

Beat egg, mix with other ingredients, form into a loaf. Bake in a loaf cake pan rubbed with shortening and pour one can of tomato soup over the loaf before putting in the oven. Moderate oven, 350 degrees F., for one half hour.

White Mountain Filling

White of an egg; two thirds of a cup of sugar; one tablespoon water; one teaspoon vanilla; one half teaspoon baking powder.

Beat the white of the egg till stiff. Add sugar slowly, and continue the beating. Then add the water, flavoring and baking powder. Turn the mixture into the upper part of a double boiler having plenty of boiling water in the lower part. Set on the heat and beat till the filling is quite warm to the touch. Then stand the pan in cold water and continue beating till cold. Pile between and on top of layer cake. This makes a creamy filling, smooth and light.

Coffee Cake

Two eggs; one cup sugar; one fourth cup shortening; one half cup warm milk; one cup flour; one fourth teaspoon salt; one teaspoon baking powder.

Blend shortening and sugar. Beat eggs and add to first mixture. Sift flour, salt and baking powder together. Add dry mixture alternately with milk to the moist mixture. Beat well. Rub a baking pan with shortening and pour in the batter. Cover the top with little pieces of butter rolled in flour then in cinnamon and sugar. Then sprinkle on top of all two tablespoons of mixed cinnamon and sugar. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., for fifteen to twenty-five minutes. Serve hot.

Snowballs

One half cup shortening; one cup powdered sugar; three cups flour; three teaspoons baking powder; one half cup milk; whites of six eggs.

Blend shortening and sugar and beat thoroughly. Sift the flour three times with the baking powder. Then add to the fat mixture alternately with the milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites, flavor with one teaspoon vanilla. Fill custard cups rubbed with shortening, one half full. Set in a shallow pan of hot water. Place in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. and bake thirty-five minutes. Serve with fruit sauce or soft custard.

Orange Biscuits

Two cups flour; four teaspoons baking powder; three fourths cup milk; two tablespoons shortening; one half teaspoon salt.

Blend the shortening and flour which has been sifted with the baking powder and salt. Add milk and mix well. Turn out on a floured board, roll lightly and cut. Make a depression in the top of each biscuit and place in this a small cube of sugar dipped in orange juice. Grate orange peel over the tops and bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees F., for twenty minutes.

Raspberry Puffs

Two and one half cups flour; two and one half teaspoons baking powder; one eighth teaspoon salt; one egg, separated; one tablespoon melted shortening; one half cup sugar; one cup milk; two cups raspberries.

Sift the flour with the baking powder and salt. Beat yolk of egg with sugar. Add milk and melted shortening. Then add flour, beat well and add berries. Pour into custard cups rubbed with shortening and bake in a moderate oven 375 degrees F. Twelve to fifteen minutes. Serve hot with hard sauce.

Pastries—Not Pasticies!

Hot weather desserts must be of the crisp, cool variety to be really refreshing. When it is pie that has the spotlight in the last course, have it just as crisp as to 'crust' as you can make it. The new pie crusts of graham crackers, soda crackers or vanilla wafers save much time and do not require so great an oven temperature as the old-standby crust does.

Deep Dish Apple Pie

3/4 C. sugar 20 butter crackers, rolled fine
3 C. cooking apples, peeled and sliced 1 pk. cream cheese
1/4 tsp. nutmeg 1/2 C. cream
1/2 C. butter 1/2 tsp. salt

Reserve 1 Tbsp. sugar for the crust. Mix the remainder with the apples and nutmeg. Put into a shallow, buttered, pudding dish. Mix crackers with softened butter and 1 Tbsp. sugar, and spread mixture in an even layer over apples. Cover the dish and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) until the apples are tender (about 30 minutes). Uncover and brown crust lightly. Blend cheese with cream and salt until it is of a fluffy consistency and serve on the pie as a garnish. Serves six.

Pecan Pie

1/2 C. butter 3 eggs
1/2 C. sugar 1 C. chopped pecans
1 C. light corn syrup 1 tsp. vanilla

Cream butter; add sugar, syrup and beaten eggs. Mix well, add pecans and vanilla, and pour into baked pie shell. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees).

Cottage Cheese Pie

1 1/2 C. smooth cot. 2 eggs
1/2 C. sugar Grated rind and juice of 1 lemon
1/4 C. moist coconut 1/4 C. cream

Mash cheese with a fork and add coconut, sugar, beaten eggs, rind and lemon juice, and cream. Mix thoroughly. Pour into a pastry-lined pie pan and bake in a quick oven (425 degrees) 10 minutes. Then reduce heat to 325 degrees and bake about 20 minutes longer, or until firm. When cool, spread with strawberry jam and serve.

Chess Pie

1/2 C. butter 1/2 C. raisins
1/2 C. sugar 1/2 C. nuts
1 egg 1/4 C. milk

Cream the butter and sugar; add yolk of the egg (well beaten), then the milk, raisins and nuts. Mix well and add last the well-beaten egg white. Pour into a pan lined with pastry and bake. Use sweetened, whipped cream for the meringue.

Jellied Strawberry Pie

1 qt. fresh strawb. 1 C. boiling water
1 C. cream 1 C. cream whipped
1 C. sugar 9 tart shells or 2 pie
1 pk. strawberry gelatine

Combine strawberries and sugar, and let stand one hour. Dissolve gelatine in boiling water, pour over strawberries, and chill until gelatine begins to thicken, stirring frequently. Fold 4 tablespoons of thickened gelatine into whipped cream. Chill. Place a layer of whipped cream in the bottom of each tart shell. Chill about 10 minutes. Add jellied strawberries, chill and serve.

Don't Forget Salads In June Menus

ALADS such as these, are nourishing and refreshing. And with sandwiches and a beverage are sufficient for luncheon when the man of the house is away.

Rose Salad

One small cabbage; one and one half cups celery, diced; one pimiento shredded; one and one half cups left over cooked chicken. Dress with tarragon dressing. (Recipe below).

Remove the outside leaves of the cabbage and cut off the stalk close to the leaves. Cut out center of head, wash carefully and place in ice water for an hour. Drain dry. Shred the center and mix with the celery and chicken. Moisten with the tarragon dressing. Re-fill the cabbage. Turn back the outer leaves of the cabbage to resemble an open rose. Lay the finely shredded red pimientos over these top leaves. Dress with tarragon dressing made as follows:

One-half teaspoon salt; one tablespoon sugar; one eighth teaspoon paprika; one half cup olive oil; one fourth cup tarragon vinegar; one hard cooked egg, chopped fine. Mix together salt, sugar and egg. Add vinegar and oil and beat thoroughly.

Spring Salad

One head lettuce; eight slender spring onions; eight small sliced radishes; three stalks celery; one cucumber; one tomato.

Cut in small slices onions, radishes, celery, and cucumber. Combine and mix thoroughly with French mousseline dressing (given below). Cut lettuce in slices and arrange in the bottom of a large salad bowl. Arrange the first mixture on the lettuce and add the tomato, cut in slender sections. Pour this dressing over all:

One teaspoon salt; two tablespoons sugar; one half cup tomato catsup; two tablespoons of olive oil; one tablespoon vinegar; one cup sour cream. Mix salt and sugar together and add the vinegar and oil slowly. Beat in the catsup and finally add the cream beating it in gradually. Enough for five.

Bean Basket Salad

Four tomatoes; one and one half cups lima beans; one tablespoon chopped parsley; one small onion grated; two tablespoons minced celery; four strips crisp broiled bacon chopped fine; one teaspoon salt; one half teaspoon pepper.

NEGLECT OF COMMON CONSTIPATION IS A SERIOUS MATTER

Prevent This Condition with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

The first question your doctor asks is whether you are constipated or not. He knows that this condition may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness. It is often the starting point of serious illness.

You can prevent and relieve common constipation so easily. Just eat a delicious cereal once a day. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that found in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this "cereal way" safer and far more pleasant than taking patent medicines—so often harmful? Two tablespoonsful of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If seriously ill, see your doctor—ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all."

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Get the red and green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Cut slice from each tomato and remove pulp. To beans add the onion, parsley, bacon, celery and seasoning. Blend with a little Chiffonade dressing (given below) and fill tomatoes with the mixture. Pour more of the dressing over the top. It is made as follows: One half teaspoon salt; one teaspoon sugar; one eighth teaspoon paprika; one teaspoon worcestershire sauce; one half cup olive oil; one fourth cup vinegar; one hard-cooked egg chopped fine. Mix salt, sugar, paprika and egg together. Add worcestershire sauce, then vinegar and oil, alternately beating constantly. Serves four.

MAXIE BAER 'CLOWNS' TITLE

Referee Halts 'Heavy' Match

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, June 15.—Weakly, his mind a blank, his grotesque feet shod with unseen rockers, all that remained of the giant who had been Primo Carnera, heavy-weight champion of the world, gestured feebly with his right hand in the eleventh round last night. Stiffly, his bruised and battered lips moved but made no sound. "I've had enough," they tried to say and Referee Arthur Donovan, who had been a most understanding man all evening, did not fail the stricken mammoth now. With one hand, he pushed Max Baer, the new champion, away and with the other escorted the old and broken and beret leader to his corner. It was the end. Carnera had been knocked down until mind conquered instinct and refused to admire the outrage longer. He had been down perhaps a dozen times to establish a modern championship record.

WILDEST EVENING
A tragic end to the Italian's countrymen who sat stunned while around them a crowd of 50,000 reveled and reeled in front of this climax to the wildest evening of the heavy-weight championship division yet has known, the Dempsey-Firpo shambles not excluded. An abject end, too, for this great oaf, 263 odd pounds on the scales yesterday and almost 6 feet 7 inches tall. He stopped on his feet, he surrendered; "resigned," I believe is the term they use abroad.

"I'm finished," the gesture said, mutely, and so to the loss of his championship and his prestige and self-approval was added the ignominy of being the first of his kind to admit defeat in this manner. No champion ever before has asked to lose. Willard didn't come out of his corner at Toledo. But the assumption was that he couldn't. Primo, when he requested a cessation, was on his feet. Maybe the novelty was too much for him. He had been on his back most of the night.

But perhaps I draw too stark a picture of one whose incentive was great. A moment before the end, he had been knocked down from the wind of a missed punch. He was about to go again, probably for the last time, after being clipped with an overhead right. But he refused. Probably the memory of him would have been kinder if he hadn't.

DONOVAN HELPED
In all, Carnera was down anywhere from nine to thirteen times, depending on whether one counted football tackles or the times when Referee Donovan, a surprisingly tolerant man, was becoming confused in his duties to a point where he seemed to be acting as Carnera's chief second. Once in the first round, he did not employ himself with a count while Carnera lay supine and helpless in the ropes but, instead, fell to with a will, tugging and hauling until he got the giant upon his feet.

Again in the tenth, while Carnera leaned upon the ropes, his back to the encounter, and gazed with sightless eyes upon the crowd, Mr. Donovan used one hand with which to restrain Baer and with the other, managed to turn the tottering hulk around and inspire it with some semblance of life.

However, these extra-official acts did not affect the end, but merely delayed it. For this lashing, slashing Baer, an even money bet with the great crowd that paid well over $400,000 for the best gate since 1930, was the ordained winner from the start, just as his counselor, Dempsey, had been at far off Toledo. In fact, it was the Willard debacle all over again, with sound effects.

LIKE YEAH AGO
A year ago, Baer had done something of the same thing to Max Schmeling, a former champion; yet they derided him this time because, in the training camp, he fiddled and fooled, one of our esteemed boxing commissioners even going so far as to use the term "bum" and to suggest that the fight be called off.

What the commissioner thought in the first round when Carnera was hit with a right hand and rebounded from the canvas, I do not know. Maybe the commissioner had stopped thinking; maybe he never started. Anyhow, Max Adelbert Baer is something new in pugilism, a Peter Pan, equipped with the hammer of Thor. If that's a little garbled, please remember that the evening was madness, a guarantee to garble with the best of them, but etched upon the reportorial mind are two pictures that will endure to the grave itself. One was the grotesque sight of Carnera turning his back to the other man after that first knockdown and literally floating for his life at a broken, stumbling, plunging run with Baer in full pursuit; the other picture presents Baer, dead, even in moments of mirth but always cool, ever composed and certain of his mission.

He was a study in strange contrasts. He either didn't fight at all or he went completely mad but, either way, there was design back of it all. Twice in the first round, he hurled the giant to the floor and fell on top of him. Many times thereafter he lulled the Italian into a sense of fancied security by letting the latter lead at will, only to exact a frightful toll with left hooks to the body and right swings that seldom missed the chin. Counting almost everything, even the times when he wasn't actually hurt, Carnera was down thrice in the first, once in the fourth, three times in the tenth and twice in the eleventh.

DEMPSEY REPLICATED
So, after all, Baer proved a fairly faithful replica of Dempsey, at least in results. In actuality, Baer

PLANS MATURE FOR BIRD PENNANT FETE

COLUMBUS, June 14.—Plans for the Columbus Red Birds pennant night on June 26 are rapidly progressing according to George M. Troutman, president of the Columbus baseball club. On this date, the Red Birds will raise the first pennant won by the Columbus team in over a quarter of a century. Fittingly, Minneapolis will provide the opposition for the occasion. The Millers furnished most of the opposition that Columbus found in its battle to the American association championship last year. According to Troutman, every sports writer of prominence in the United States has been invited to attend as guest of the Columbus team as well as many sports broadcasters, officials of every league of importance in the country and outstanding champions in every line of athletic endeavor.

The program for the 26th calls for brief but impressive ceremonies at 7:45 and a night game at 8:30. Following the night game, there will be a short display of fireworks.

Serving on the pennant Night committee are Governor George White, Mayor Henry W. Worley, Joe Carr of the National Association of Professional Baseball League, Fred Milligan, president of the Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce, Paul Lindmore, president of the Columbus Civic Club Council and Arthur L. Evans, Charles Nixon and Fred D. Cornolley, all of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce. The Committee is stressing the fact that this occasion is of signal importance not only to the Red Birds but to organized baseball in general.

The Red Birds return from their present road trip on Tuesday, June 19 to be home through July 5. The four Western clubs of the American Association as well as Toledo will provide the opposition during this extended stay.

retreated last night, whereas, Dempsey always advanced. So their methods differ radically; in fact, Baer seemed to have none. But that was a delusion. He carefully paced himself, wilfully accepting a hundred unimportant punches, so that when he launched a good one, the surprise element was the greater. And always he seemed to know that the outcome was ordained.

He forever kept fussing with his trunks, apparently more impressed with this problem, whatever it was, than any Carnera could present. Once, at the start of a round, he stood in his corner, a confident, knowing smile on his lips, and waited for Carnera to advance all the way across the ring. Again, this time in the ninth round, he took a tight left on the face; then he buried a sort of Billy Watson with his knees, after which he smiled faintly as though to say that his really wasn't so funny, after all.

However, it was easy to enjoy oneself as long as one is able to stand back and call one's shots as Baer did last night. And Carnera made it easier. Badly advised in his corner, he never took a count of more than two. Had he done so in the first round, instead of getting rapidly up and running in an absolute panic, he might have had a chance. Perhaps his illness of Monday robbed him of his stamina and speed. More likely, it was that first right hand punch. In any case, I personally think he never saw the day when he had a chance with the Baer who licked him last night.

His corner, of course, was no great comfort. Sorely was there, sputtering in Italian. Nobody could hear Dan Morgan for the first time in his life. Duffy was in prison, staring at the walls. Good Time Charley Friedman was sitting on the ring steps, saying nothing. However, when the time came, Carnera said it for himself. "I'm through," he signalled in mute surrender.

BIRDS IN TOLEDO; SIGN TOM OLIVER

TOLEDO, June 14.—The Columbus Red Birds came here today for a game under the lights with the Toledo Mudhens.

Success of the teams was divided in game yesterday. At Indianapolis, the Birds were ineffective, and lost to the Indians by a 10-2 score. The Hens profited on errors of the Colonels, and won 8 to 2 at Louisville.

COLUMBUS, June 15. Tom Oliver, an outfielder, has been obtained from the Baltimore International League Club on option and will report to the Columbus Red Birds at once. President George M. Troutman of the American Association club announced today.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

A REAL RECREATION BALL attraction is booked for the Southern Ohio Electric Co. field this evening with the Container Corporation outfit taking on the U. S. reformatory team from Chillicothe. The straw-boarders went to Chillicothe, Sunday, but were not permitted into the U. S. grounds.

All you ball players who have not yet sold all your tickets to the Leroy Oliver benefit games Sunday should get busy at once. * * * 400 DUCATS PUT OUT MUST BE DISPOSED OF.

The second half of this old ball league is going to be plenty tough. Every team in the league has been strengthened in the last week and the race promises to be a walk-away for no one. * * * The Mecca restaurant and Container Corporation play for the first half championship Tuesday evening. * * * Cum Robinson says he has resigned as manager of the Mecca team but we won't believe that until his outfit hops onto the field next Tuesday.

THOSE WHO GUESSED THE winner of the heavy-weight fight correctly were: Pat Malone, Fred Fissell, Elliott Voll, George Roof, H. O. Eveland, Bob Maloney, Solly McNeal, Will Hamilton, Bones Hammel, Leo White, Frank Goff, Troy White, Mary Morris, Judge Young, Bob Armstrong. * * * Those who made poor guesses were: K. J. Herrmann, Otis Stonerock, Dorthy Courtwright, Lawrence Johnson, Frank Hurtt, Ed. Wallace, Jack Ryan, Harry Weill, J. C. Baker, Ray Davis, Harry Grove, Meeker Tarwilliger, Judge Adkins, George Barnes, Jake Young and Virgil Brown.

HENDERSON

the Pickaway commissioners are "trying the Youngstown idea."

AIDED INSTITUTIONS
The county commissioners in Mahoning-co attempted to divert a large amount of relief funds to county welfare institutions and to county purposes. A test case was brought as a result, and the courts held that the board of county commissioners is only an agency for handling relief funds as directed by the commission.

The court's verdict upheld the law providing that funds from poor relief bonds shall go into a relief fund, and that expenditures from the fund can be legally made only with the commission's approval. It is understood that the Pickaway commissioners recently have conferred with the commissioners of Harrison-co, which chose from the start to handle its own relief burden and refused to issue poor relief bonds of any kind and thus have not received federal and state relief money.

History repeats itself. The Children of Israel were loyal to their leader so long as they got manna from Heaven.

GIVENS BLANK MEATS, 6 TO 0; JONES ON HILL

Colored Team Tough; Only Five McClarren Batters Reach First Sack.

The Given Oil Co. ball club turned in its tracks, Thursday evening, and bit hard at one of the league teams in an effort to regain lost honors. Pushed around by five of the clubs, the Givens held faith in the saying "The Worm Turns" or words to that effect and drubbed the Meat-men 6 to 0 with Bob Jones giving only three hits. He fanned four and walked one.

Just to show how easy the McClarrens, usually heavy-hitters were for Jones' slants the following figures are presented: The losers never had more than one runner on base at a time; only two men reached third base, Ferguson after his scratch infield hit in the fifth, the first hit off Jones, and Miller after his double to left in the sixth; only five men were on base all evening. Bliss walking in the third, Davis on A. Jones' bad throw to first in the fourth, D. Ferguson in the fifth, Miller in the sixth, and Denny on his single with two away in the ninth.

SCORE IN THIRD
The Givens were easy in the first two innings but they started to club Doc Ferguson's offerings in the third. J. Lewis and W. Jones hit, the latter being out at third after Jones' had scored. Hoston's triple was wasted in this frame.

Three more came over in the fifth on a walk to C. Hill, and singles by E. Jones, L. Hill and A. Jones after two were out. The Givens scored again in the sixth on a walk to W. Jones after J. Lewis' single, a fielder's choice and Hoston's single. The final run came in the eighth on W. Jones' double to left C. Hill's single with Jones holding second, all hands being safe when Denny dropped the ball for a forecourt at third and L. Hill's single.

The colored team was plenty happy at the conclusion of the game really celebrating its first victory in the league.

A fielding feature was Louis Hill's catching Miller's foul fly. Hill ran up the hill in short left to take the catch.

DIVIDE DUTIES
Doc Ferguson pitched four and one-half innings being relieved by Merle Davis who was also treated roughly.

Buskirk and Rooney were the umpires.

blaze from spreading to adjoining office buildings.

USE FIRE TOWERS

Sparks from the conflagration started a small blaze on the roof of a next-door building, but the firemen, erecting two fire towers, extinguished the blaze before it had gained headway.

The first alarm was turned in at 2:10 a. m., and the fire burned for hours. It left the walls of the building standing but the roof caved in and the structure was ruined beyond repair.

Built before the era of motion pictures, the theater was one of the oldest in the city. In latter years, it had been transformed into a motion picture show but fortunately the last performance of yesterday evening had been completed a few hours before the fire broke out.

Origin of the blaze was not known.

Hundreds of spectators, some of them in night clothes from nearby hotels, rushed to the scene as flames lighted the sky over the city. Police maintained order.

FIREMEN INJURED

Several firemen were slightly hurt in fighting the blaze. Some of them were knocked to the street by streams of water from the hoses, misdirected because of the heavy clouds of smoke.

The theater was originally known as the Athenaeum and by several names later, including the Schubert. Nearly every star of the legitimate stage of the last three-quarters of a century trod its boards.

SOCIETY

Miss Helen Crist, Editor, Phone 581

Miss Buchanan, D. U. V. Stages
John Richards, Flag Day with
Wed Thursday Memorial Rite

Their newly-furnished home in Carrollton was the scene of the marriage of Miss Margaret Buchanan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Buchanan, S. Pickaway-ave. this city, and Mr. John L. Richards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Richards of Carrollton. Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock, Rev. A. B. Reid, of the United Presbyterian church, read the nuptials in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends.

Miss Grace Achamer, of Carrollton, and Mr. Joseph Richards, of Cleveland, brother of the bridegroom, served as maid of honor and best man.

A powder blue gown of mouseline de soie fashioned floor length was worn by the bride. She wore pink slippers and accessories and carried pink roses.

Miss Achamer was attired in a yellow floor length gown and carried yellow roses.

Pastel shades were carried out in the home decorations for the wedding and dinner following. Attending from here besides the bride's family was Miss Minnie Taylor.

Immediately after the dinner and reception, the couple left for a trip on the lakes and in Canada. Upon their return they will reside on Lincoln-ave in Carrollton.

Mrs. Richards is a graduate of the Carrollton high school and attended Ohio university normal school at Athens. For the past two years she has been a teacher in the Wayne-twv school.

Mr. Richards graduated from the law school of the University of Florida in Gainesville and also attended Case School of Technology at Cleveland. He is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity. He is practicing law in Carrollton and at present is the county's representative in the legislature.

Survives Death Swim

Margaret Bott

Found bound by rope with the lifeless body of her mother, pretty Margaret Bott, above, 22-year-old Chicago girl, has been rescued from Lake Michigan, unconscious but still alive, following an alleged double suicide attempt. Apparently fearing a third operation for mastoid, the girl and her mother, Mrs. Alice King Bott, allegedly tied themselves together, and swam out into the lake, seeking death. Revived after her rescue, the girl told authorities "we wanted to die together."

D. A. R. MEMBERS MEET
WITH LANCASTER CHAPTER

Nine members of the Pickaway Plains chapter Daughters of the American Revolution motored to Lancaster, Thursday, to meet with the Lancaster chapter D. A. R. for a Flag Day celebration. Members of the Logan chapter were also guests.

Luncheon was enjoyed at 1 o'clock at the Lancaster Country club followed by an appropriate program.

Mrs. James P. Moffitt and Mrs. Helen Black Anderson, local members, took part in the program. Mrs. Moffitt sang "Ah 'Tis a Dream," by Hawley and "Little Boy Blue," by Joyce.

Mrs. Anderson gave greetings from the Pickaway Plains chapter and read a poem, "The Flag Goes By."

Attending the interesting meeting from here besides Mrs. Moffitt and Mrs. Anderson were Mrs. Orion King, Mrs. Emmitt L. Crist, Mrs. C. C. Watts, Miss Edith Haswell, Mrs. George P. Foreman, Mrs. Frank Bennett and Mrs. Harry Heffner.

Mrs. H. J. Dunlap of Williamsport, Mrs. Glenn Nickerson and Mrs. Clark Husaker attended a D. A. R. meeting of the Columbus chapter, Thursday.

BRIDGE CLUB ENTERTAINED

Two tables of bridge were assembled at the home of Mrs. Grady Randall, E. Mill-st., Thursday evening, when she entertained the members of her club.

Miss Virginia Marion, a guest, and Mrs. Franklin Kibler were winners of high score favors. Tempting refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mrs. Carl Wallace, W. Main-st., will entertain the club in two weeks.

FOUR PROGRAM PIANO RECITAL CONCLUDED

The annual piano recital of the students of Mrs. Leon Van Vliet, W. High-st., which was extended this year to four programs because of the increase in the enrollment of the class, was concluded Thursday evening.

The students were equally divided in programs on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons and evenings. On each occasion the studio was filled with an appreciative audience, the younger pupils vying with the senior students for popularity.

At three of the programs Miss Mary May Haswell, vocal pupil of Mrs. R. P. Heiskell, favored the audience with vocal solos, in her rich mezzo soprano voice.

Miss Mary Kathryn Baker opened the senior program Thursday evening by giving her version of the famous composer of the past and composers of modern classics. She played "Two Larks," by Lischetzky, greatest teacher in history, and "The Crap Shooters," by Lane, a composer of modern classics.

Pupils and audience so enjoyed the ensemble work of the past few years that Mrs. Van Vliet increased the eight and twelve hand selections in order to have different pupils in them each day.

The Thursday evening program follows:

"Two Larks," Leschetzky and "The Crap Shooters," Lane—Mary Kathryn Baker; "Music Box," Liebig—Wahnta Barnhart; "Marcie di Bravura," Dutton—Lucille May; "Fantasie de Concert," Ryder—Eleanor R. McAbee; "The Banjo Player," Stillwell—Glen McCoy; duet, "Ojos Criollos," Gottschalk—Gladys Noggle and Mrs. Van Vliet; "Second Mazurka," Godard—Gladys Noggle; vocal solos, "Summer," Chaminade, "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair," Haydon—Mary May Haswell accompanied by Mrs. Van Vliet; "Majesty of the Deep," Hamer—Eleanor Stout; "Fluttering Leaves," Koelling—Evelyn Dreisbach; "Maiden's Prayer," Badarzewska—Dorothy Howell.

"Arabesque," Helmund and "Valse-Improvisu," Ucraft—Virginia Dreisbach; two piano duet, "Camp of Glory," Holst—June West and Junior Mowery; "Piqua Dame," Bohm—Eleanor Dreisbach; "Second Valse," Godard—Helen Hill, second piano, Virginia Dreisbach and Eleanor Dreisbach; "Pizzicati," Delibes and "Clicking Castanets," Williams—Betty West; "Spooks and Shadows," Adams—June West; "Country Gardens," Grainger—Jean Theobald; "Home Sweet Home," Thalberg—Martha Belle Ferguson; "Semiramide," Rossini—first piano, Martha Belle Ferguson, Wahnta Barnhart, June West and second piano, Gladys Noggle, Lucille May and Junior Mowery.

BELLING IS GIVEN

MR. AND MRS. BOYER

A bell was given a recently married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Boyer, (Kathryn Marion), Watt-st., Thursday evening, by thirty members of the Methodist Episcopal church choir of which the couple are members.

A kitchen shower was a feature of the evening. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the affair.

SEVEN ATTEND GRADUATION AT COLUMBUS COLLEGE

Mrs. H. B. Given, Miss Lydia Given, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wallace and Mr. and Mrs. Bishop Given attended commencement exercises Thursday evening at St. Mary's of the Springs college, Columbus.

The former's daughter, Miss Virginia Given, received her Bachelor of Arts in Science degree at the graduation exercises. Miss Given came today to spend the summer with her mother.

MRS. LISTON HOSTESS TO SEWING CLUB

Mrs. Robert T. Liston, of the Columbus-pk, was hostess Thursday afternoon when thirteen members of her sewing club and five guests enjoyed a delightful social session at her home.

Guests were Mrs. Lawrence Liston, Mrs. Willis Liston, Miss Florence Hoffman, Miss Helen Hoffman and Elizabeth Ann Baker of Portsmouth.

A profusion of colorful flowers decorated the rooms where the guests were assembled for the pleasant afternoon, which was concluded when a delicious two course lunch was served.

The July meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Stanley Glick, Walnutcreek-pk.

SEWING CLUB ENJOYS SPREAD AT SMITH HOME

Mrs. Charles Smith, E. Main-st., was hostess, Thursday, when members of her sewing club gathered at her home for a spread at 12:30 o'clock.

Flowers were laid for Mrs. J. Wallace Crist, Mrs. Henry Mader, Mrs. Clarence Ater, Mrs. Charles Myers, Miss Mary Heffner, Mrs. Ralph Boggs, Mrs. Harry Dresbach, and Mrs. S. M. Cryder, this city; Mrs. Carson Dresbach, Mrs. Alice Riegel and Mrs. Ethel Young of Kingston; Mrs. Simon David of Jackson; and the hostess.

An enjoyable afternoon was spent in sewing.

Mrs. Myers will entertain the club in two weeks at her home on E. Union-st.

R. N. A. MEET IN REGULAR SESSION

The regular meeting of the Royal Neighbors of America was held Thursday evening in Modern Woodman hall with thirty five members present.

Plans were made to have a memorial service Wednesday evening, June 27, at the hall.

After the business session a birthday supper was served in honor of members having anniversaries in May and June. The tables were decorated with flowers, candles and birthday cakes. At the close of the meeting each honor guest was presented a basket of flowers.

FORMER RESIDENTS HONOR GRADUATES

An informal reception was held this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Francis, Hawkes-ave, Columbus, former residents of this city, when they honored their daughter, Wana, and their son-in-law, Harry E. Boyer, formerly of this city.

Miss Wana Francis received a certificate of completion from the Dana-ave elementary school and Mr. Boyer received his diploma from the Evangelical Lutheran Theological Seminary, also the degree of Bachelor of Divinity from Capital university.

MRS. MARION HOSTESS TO ART SEWING CLUB

Nine members of the Art sewing club and three guests, Miss Giff Macklin, Miss Katherine Weller and Mrs. Noah Spangler, enjoyed a pleasant afternoon Thursday at the home of Mrs. George Marion of the Lancaster-pk.

Baskets of roses and lilies decorated the home and small bowls of roses centered the tables for the delectable refreshments served late in the afternoon.

Miss Laura Mantle, E. Main-st., will be hostess at the club's July meeting.

LUTHER LEAGUE MEETS WITH ST. PAUL LEAGUE
About twenty members of the Luther League of Trinity Lutheran church motored to St. Paul Thursday evening and enjoyed a social session with the League of St. Paul Lutheran church.

MISS LEMAY'S COMING MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. Charles LeMay, of Commercial Point, are announcing the coming marriage of their daughter, Miss Vida LeMay, to Mr. Ralph Cloud, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cloud of Ashville.

Formal announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage was made at a tea given Wednesday afternoon at the LeMay home.

Guests from Ashville were Mrs. A. W. Graham, Mrs. Claude Boyer, Mrs. Carl Reed, Mrs. John Cloud, Mrs. Mary Childers, Mrs. C. B. Morrison, Mrs. Ben Morrison and Mrs. Dick Rife.

MISS MEAD ENTERTAINS BRIDGE CLUB AND GUESTS

Miss Ethel Stein, Mrs. Fred Dauenhauser, this city, and Mrs. M. C. Frazier of Washington, D. C. were guests when Miss Katherine Mead, Logan-st., entertained the members of her club at a delightful evening of bridge, Thursday at the American Hotel Coffee shoppe.

Three tables of cards were in play with high score trophies going to Miss Stein and Miss Mead. A delectable lunch was served bringing the party to a close.

In two weeks the club will meet with Mrs. Clarence McAbee, Wayne-twv.

SEWING CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. WHITE

The Yo-Yo sewing club was pleasantly entertained Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Clyde White, W. Mill-st. The enjoyable hours were spent in sewing and music and at their conclusion a delicious two course lunch was served.
